FRANCO-RUSSIAN PACT RUMOUR

BRITAIN FORCED TO ALTER POLICY

DIPLOMATIC CHESS ON EVE OF CONFERENCE

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, April 11, 9.10 a.m.)

London, April 10.

It is understood that an extraordinary Cabinet meeting was called at No. 10 Downing Street to-day just prior to the departure of the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, and the Foreign Minister, Sir John Simon, for the international conference at Stresa.

It is believed that it was decided at the last minute to change the British programme for the Stresa talks, due to reports that France and the Soviet were about to enter into a virtual military alliance.

The British representatives would try to switch France towards a merging of the Russian agreement into a broader European security pact or surrounding it with other treaties, to which Germany could adhere.

Prior to this Cabinet conference, Sir John Simon had lengthy talks with Mr. Bingham, the American Ambassador to London, outlining the situation for President Roosevelt's benefit.

The Foreign Minister said that Great Britain would not engage herself to any new commitments. The Stresa meeting was purely exploratory, he pointed out.

From the Stresa discussions it is hoped that decisions will emerge as to what action the former War Allies will ask the League Council to take on Monday in connection with France's protest, filed with the League, against Germany's repudiation of the Versailles Treaty; and as to what possibility there may be of making an offer to Germany which would bring her into the organised struggle to escape the danger of war.—United Press.

Parliament's Record

CONSTITUTION OF BURMA DEBATED

London, April 10.

What must amount to a Parliamentary record occurred at today's session when the whole of the Constitution of Burma was discussed in one evening during the Committee Stage of the India Bill.

The Burma section of the Bill consisted of 162 clauses, but proceedings were accelerated by the fact that most of the questions involved have already been settled during debates on the India Section of the Bill.—Reuter.

London, April 10.

When consideration of the transitional provisions of the Government of India Bill was completed to-day, 297 clauses had been dealt with.

The next part of the Bill, Paragraph 14, deals with Burma, and, in accordance with the provision given earlier, with the general assent of the Committee, there was a debate on the question of separation of Burma to-day.

A motion for the omission of Paragraph 14, on the ground that the same progress towards self-government had not been made in Burma as in India, was listed by the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, who said the Statutory Commission came very definitely to the view that the great weight of opinion in Burma was in favour of separation. The result of the Round Table Conference confirmed that view, as did the Joint Select Committee. His inquiries convinced him that strong feeling in Burma still desired separation.

INTERIM PERIOD

The Government, however, insisted that every possible step be taken to avoid sudden dislocation of the economic bond that had

ASSURING AMERICAN NEUTRALITY

ROOSEVELT FAVOURS NYE-CLARK BILLS

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Washington, April 10.

America's policy of strict neutrality, aimed at keeping the United States out of entanglements and foreign wars, was discussed at a meeting of President Roosevelt and Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, at the White House to-day.

According to well-informed quarters, President Roosevelt favours the resolutions introduced by Senators Nye and Clark of the Senate Munitions Committee.

These resolutions would involve a virtual embargo on loans by America, either by the Government or private individuals, to belligerent nations for the purpose of purchasing munitions or other contraband, and would also empower the President to refuse passports to Americans seeking to enter the war areas.—Reuter.

No More Aid For Farmers

SUGAR BEETS WON'T PAY GROWERS

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, April 10.

The report of the Commission of Enquiry into the British sugar beet industry, launched under Government auspices in 1924 and continuing for the past ten years, was made public to-day.

The Commission cannot recommend continuance of financial assistance, amounting to several millions sterling annually, to an industry which has no reasonable prospects of ever being self-supporting.

Production of a sugar beet crop without assistance, at the present price of sugar, would be practically valueless, it is held.—Reuter Special.

YELLOW RIVER'S FLOOD FALLS

DYKE-REPAIRING BEING RUSHED

Tientsin, April 10.

According to a report from Southern Hopei, the flood situation of the Yellow River in the Hopei-Shantung border districts has considerably eased as the flood water is receding at a steady rate. Taking advantage of the situation dyke-repairs are being rushed to completion in order to prevent a repetition of earlier flood disasters.—Central News.

CONTROL OF ARMS TRAFFIC

NATIONS NEARER AGREEMENT

JAPAN JOINS MINORITY

Geneva, April 10.

The Disarmament Commission, dealing with the control of the international arms traffic, has made excellent progress, according to a communique issued following the recent deliberations and discussions of its membership.

The most satisfactory feature of its activities has been the declaration by the Japanese delegate, associating himself with the minority report, which was composed, for the most part, by Great Britain, Italy and Poland. Thus the Japanese delegate abandoned the attitude of complete detachment which had threatened to nullify the work of the Commission, as the Soviet's acquiescence depended entirely upon Japan's stand.

The report of the Commission is expected to be made public in a few days.

It is anticipated that the Commission will adopt a modified convention to control traffic in and manufacture of arms, but instead of supervision on the spot, as the United States proposed to regulate the trade, control will be centred at Geneva.—Reuter.

WHOLE CABINET AT CEREMONY

REICHSBISHOP OFFICIATES

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, April 11, 9 a.m.)

Berlin, April 10.

Golden spotlights, directed upon an altar decorated with evergreens and huge banks of azaleas, shed a romantic radiance from all parts of the Cathedral when General Hermann Goering, Premier of Prussia and Reichminister for Air, was married to-day to the lovely stage star, Frau Emmi Sonnemann.

Herr Hitler, Chancellor of Germany, and all his Ministers, were seated in the front row of the Cathedral.

As Germany's famous figures entered the congregation rose and gave the Hitler salute, and there would be cries of "Heil!" as some particularly popular person arrived.

General Goering was dressed in the uniform of the Air Force, which he commands, and his bride, white-gowned, carried a red bouquet.

Reichsbishop Mueller officiated at the ceremony, reading from First Corinthians, verses one to eight, and thirteen.

In his brief sermon he said: "This marriage is a symbol of the new Germany's national unity."

The pair drove off in an open car, decorated with white and pink carnations.—Reuter Special.

TRANSIT DUTIES TO BE ABOLISHED

Nanking, Apr. 10.

The Ministry of Finance has submitted recommendations to the Executive Yuan for the abolition of transit duties, as a means to encourage export trade.

It is learned that the Executive Yuan is prepared to approve this suggestion, but the date for giving effect to the abolition will not be fixed until further consideration has been taken.—Central News.

SILVER PRICES RISE AGAIN

LIVELY TRADING IN WHITE METAL

AMERICA PREPARES TO MEET ADVANCE

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

New York, April 10.

Messrs. Handy and Harmon, bullion brokers, to-day quoted silver at 64 1/4 per ounce. A lively market developed with prices higher than the fixed official price being paid. At 1 p.m. 64 1/4 was bid and 64 1/2 offered.

On the Montreal Silver Exchange prices were 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents higher. Business amounted to 1,670,000 ounces, which is a new high record.

The advances in world silver prices prompted a conference of Treasury officials in Washington late to-day and there were indications that the price would be boosted over 64 1/2 cents. An official statement regarding the immediate silver programme is expected shortly.

Later, a new official price for domestic mined silver was fixed at 71 cents per ounce.

WORLD AERIAL POLICE

FRENCH SUGGESTION DISCUSSED

LITTLE HOPE OF SUCCESS

London, Apr. 10.

The Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas, was asked in Parliament whether any of the Dominions had at any time been consulted regarding the French proposal of March, 1933, for an international aerial police force for the purpose of preventing misuse of civil aircraft.

He said that throughout the course of the Disarmament Conference there been constant consultations with representatives of the Dominions on all aspects of the problem involved. So far as he was aware, no Dominion Government had made any official pronouncement on this particular proposal, but there had been published from time to time statements of Dominion representatives indicating dissent from a conception of the League of Nations as an organisation with an armed force of its own.

Answering a supplementary question, Mr. Thomas cited, as the pronouncement of one of the Dominion representatives, General Smuts, in which he said: "If an attempt were made now to transform the League of Nations into a military machine for preventing or ending war, I think its fate is sealed. I cannot conceive the Dominions remaining in such a League, and if the Dominions leave it, Great Britain is bound to follow."—British Wireless.

TOLL OF THE ROAD

LOWER BRITISH FIGURES

London, April 10.

Mr. Horo Bellish, Transport Minister, stated in the Commons that the number of persons killed and injured on roads in Great Britain during the last three years was 6 per cent. less than during the corresponding period of 1934, while during the same period there were approximately 12 per cent. more mechanically propelled vehicles licensed.—British Wireless.

After a conference at the White House, the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau said that the Treasury's price for silver from domestic producers would meet the world price if it rises above 64 1/2 cents.

Earlier in the day President Roosevelt had asked the Treasury what would happen if silver exceeded 64 1/2 cents per ounce, and said that the producers would get more for it regardless of where it was sold.

It is understood that the Mint officials have prepared to take any steps necessary for payment of the higher price which, it is indicated by the most recent market trends, is imminent.

Exports anticipate a higher payment to producers through a reduction in the seigniorage charge. Responsible circles ridicule the possibility of the silver dollar being devalued the same as the gold dollar.—United Press.

LOCAL DOLLAR PRESS

The result of the increase of the silver price in America was to send the Hongkong dollar up to 2s. 0 1/2. This morning, an advance of 3/8ths. The business rate early on was about 2s. 1d., the market being firm.

Shanghai, which is not following silver, remained unchanged at 1s. 6 13/16d.

Silver prices advanced 1/8th in London, the advance being due to speculative and Indian buying.

China bought and sold on a steady market.

France to Mint New Gold

MINT PRESSES AT WORK AGAIN

(Special to "Telegraph")

Paris, April 10.

The first gold coin issue, announced by M. Flandin, Premier of France, on April 4, was formally coined at the French Mint by the Ministry of Finance, in the presence of one hundred guests, to-day.

The motive of the issue, it was emphasised, was to show France's faith in gold and her determination to remain on the gold standard.

Coins to the value of £17,000,000 will be minted in 1935, it is announced.—Reuter Special.

BRITAIN SHOULD BE STRONG

AIR MENACE TO CIVILIANS

SOME FINE TARGETS

By RICHARD FINDLAY
(Former R.A.F. War Pilot)

If war were to break out again the conditions of warfare would be found to be greatly changed. During the Great War bombing aircraft were only just beginning to find their true sphere. In the Royal Air Force only nine bombing squadrons were detached as a separate force for attacks upon civilian centres, while on the German side the attacks upon England were made by a relatively small number of aircraft. But, if this country is again embroiled in a Continental dispute with another nation, with attacking distance of our shores, bombing aircraft will be found to have the striking power of long-range heavy guns. Raiding aircraft would in the first instance be directed against certain definite objectives, the destruction of which would have for its aim the curtailment of our military power. Attacks would be launched against important munition centres, centres of aircraft and aero-engine production, aerodromes, fuel depots, harbours, railway junctions, and other vital points.

When this work had been accomplished the terrorisation of the civil population would begin. Norwood, in common with the rest of London and other large towns throughout the country, would become the target for terrific bombardment from the air.

LAND MARK

To the pilot who has flown over London there is no greater or more conspicuous landmark than the Crystal Palace. It can be seen in clear weather from very great distances, and in bad weather, before wireless communication with the ground was properly established, it served as a guiding mark to the pilots flying on the air traffic routes converging on Croydon. It is of great value as a landmark in times of peace; its possibilities as a guide in times of war are too awful to contemplate.

Unfortunately for the people of Norwood it stands as a beacon on the fringe of their district, and aeroplanes approaching through the smoky mists that frequently enshroud London would certainly seize upon it as a pointer. There can be little doubt that such a landmark would attract the raiding bomber.

There would be no point in launching an attack upon that building. Its demolition by high explosive bombs would destroy a landmark of too great a value. Only the neighbourhood would suffer by its proximity to the Crystal Palace, and Norwood might well become one of the most severely bombed of all the districts which comprise the county of London, when the weather conditions were at their worst.

GAS BOMBS

Gas bombs would be dropped to disabie and demoralise the civil population; incendiary bombs would cause more fires than the combined efforts of all our fire brigades could hope to deal with, while high-explosive bombs would hamper their efforts to prevent the wholesale destruction which would result. Low-flying aeroplanes would attack with machine guns the crowds driven from the burning buildings.

We are a pacific people; we have everything to lose and nothing to gain by war. But it is precisely because we desire peace so earnestly that we should take active steps to ensure its continuance. We must, therefore, establish without delay the largest and best-equipped Air Force in the world, the existence of which will be the best guarantee that War shall not again break loose upon the world. This Air Force would not only make attack upon our shores so doubtful of success as to be unlikely, but would also constitute such a power of retaliation that no nation would dare to risk its effect.

CHICKEN AND TONGUE

SANDWICHES

At this season of the year cold remains of tongue and fowl crop up, not sufficient for another meal, but too much to throw out. The smallest scraps will make delicious sandwiches if minced very finely, pounded with a little mayonnaise, and spread thickly on thin slices of bread and butter. Arrange on a pretty dish, garnish with sprigs of bright green parsley, and they will be thankfully received at tea-time by your family.

FUEL SUPPLY

The question of fuel supplies is one which concerns the Air Force very closely, since we depend for these upon imports. It is essential that the routes along which the oil tankers come should be adequately defended. But even more important is the development of the new processes for deriving oil from coal, so that in the last resort we should have sufficient fuel supplies within our own borders.

But we must take other steps as well for our security. We should begin to instruct the civil population in the use of gas masks; we should begin to erect bomb shelters to which they could retire in the event of an attack from the air. We should realise that it is only by discipline that we can ensure that panic would not be added to all the other horrors of aerial warfare should peace be menaced by military aggression.

Britain's weakness is one of the principal causes of the unrest and uncertainty in Europe to-day. Let Britain be strong and Europe will be tranquil.

AUTOGIRO FOR NAVY

CRADLE INVENTION FOR TAKE-OFF

VERTICAL FLIGHTS

The Navy is to have its first autogiro in less than two months' time, says the Morning Post Naval Correspondent. The machine will, I understand, be attached to the aircraft carrier Courageous. Several officers of the Fleet Air Arm have already visited Old Sarum Aerodrome to gain experience in the handling of autogiros.

The autogiro will be used for carrying out a number of trials to determine the exact use of such machines in the Fleet Air Arm.

The fact that the Admiralty are now to have an autogiro for experimental purposes is of particular interest in view of the announcement last week of Senor de la Cierwa, the inventor, to the Aeronautical Society that the problem of vertical flight had been overcome.

Vertical flight will be of the greatest advantage for autogiros working from ships not having flight decks or landing platforms. It will also make far more practicable an invention for which a provisional patent has already been taken out. This consists of a cradle which can be hoisted over the side of a ship on a davit or derrick, and which can be used for the taking off and landing of an autogiro without an undercarriage.

An autogiro which can take off or land without any undercarriage is of the greatest importance from the naval point of view, for dispensing with the undercarriage will save weight which can then be added to the equipment or fuel storage of the autogiro.

DISADVANTAGES

From the naval point of view, existing autogiros suffer from several inherent disadvantages. The most important of these is their low carrying capacity. Not only does this discount much of their use as reconnaissance machines, but it dictates a small radius of action.

The autogiros in existence today have a carrying capacity of only about one-quarter of the reconnaissance load of the latest machines in the Fleet Air Arm. This reconnaissance load is made up partly of flotation gear, but chiefly of wireless telegraphy and telephony instruments and navigational instruments of great accuracy.

On the other hand, attempts have not yet been made to effect a large increase in the carrying capacity of the autogiro, and it is probable that the results of trials made by the Fleet Air Arm may encourage designers and manufacturers to produce autogiros capable of fulfilling the peculiar needs of the Fleet Air Arm.

Another disadvantage of existing autogiros for Fleet work is their low speed and endurance. At sea one may frequently require air reconnaissance ahead when steaming at high speed into a strong wind or gale. Under such conditions the autogiro of to-day would be unable to effect a reconnaissance ahead of the Fleet of any reasonable depth.

It is alleged, also, that the autogiro is peculiarly vulnerable to anti-aircraft gunfire and to air attack. It is certain that these problems will be thoroughly investigated so soon as the Fleet Air Arm receives its autogiro.

HOME GARDENING: II

HOW TO TRANSFER SEEDLINGS FROM FLATS

BY PROF. C. H. NISSLEY.

A loose, friable soil that will not bake is a good medium in which to grow "transplants." A mixture of one-third manure, one-third garden soil, and one-third sand is recommended.

Have the soil into which the young plants are transplanted slightly richer in plant food than the soil in which they were started as seedlings. Bone meal, added at the rate of a 5-inch flower pot full to a medium-sized wheel-barrow of the prepared soil, will add the proper amount of plant food.

Set the transplants so that the crotch of the seed leaves is just above the ground. The roots are placed into holes, which are made either by the finger or by the use of "dibbles."

Press the ground around the roots thoroughly so that there will be no possibility of an air space surrounding them. Have the soil quite moist, since it is essential that the roots obtain an adequate water supply.

Water the plants immediately after transplanting, and shade them for at least 24 to 36 hours, especially if the day is warm. If the plants are set in an outdoor cold frame, put the sash in place and place salt hay, burlap, canvas or some other kind of a covering over the glass.

A cold frame will be found of great assistance in cultivating hardy vegetable plants. It offers protection from cold weather, starts plants quicker, and results in an earlier plant. It also offers a place in which to acclimatise early plants grown under controlled heat conditions to outdoor environment prior to garden transplanting.

It may be constructed at very little cost, using one and a quarter-inch by 12-inch cypress, spruce or rough hemlock boards from 14 to 18 feet long, placed parallel to each other, 6 feet apart.

They should run east and west with a slant of from 4 to 6 inches toward the south. This will permit more sunlight to enter the frame and will provide a means of carrying off excess rain water.

The cold frame should be protected against extreme cold either through electric heating or through the use of burlap or canvas covers, which should be properly anchored.

Here is a well-laid-out vegetable garden illustrating the practice of "companion cropping." String beans have been planted between rows of tomatoes.

The string beans mature in 50 to 60 days and will be harvested by the time the tomato plants need the extra room. The bean vines will then be turned under, and the tomatoes will thus be aided by the provision of more organic matter in the soil.

Many combinations of early and late crops may be profitably subjected to this system of "companion cropping."

Next Tuesday: Vegetable varieties.

ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE

LONDON TO NEW YORK IN 24 HOURS

NEWFOUNDLAND TO GALWAY

London, Mar. 20. The prospect of a regular passenger and mail air service across the Atlantic has at last been brought within sight of realisation by negotiations which have been conducted during the last few months between interested parties and the Government in London, Dublin, Newfoundland, and the United States. These negotiations have reached a stage when the possibility of a regular Transatlantic service between Galway Bay, Ireland, and Newfoundland in seven and a half hours may be a reality within the next year.

For economic and other reasons, it is claimed that the successful working of a regular Transatlantic schedule must depend on the use of the shortest and most direct route between the Old World and the New; and the scheme will provide for the building of a new aerodrome at Galway Bay. From there it is a "hop" of 1,600 miles to the nearest point upon the other side of the Atlantic—Notre Dame Bay, Newfoundland. A site for this aerodrome has already been selected at Furbough, by Sir Alan Cobham, air consultant to the Irish Transatlantic Corporation, a company controlled by trustees approved by the Irish Free State Government, whose chairman, Mr. C. H. Clendinning, has throughout been the prime mover in the negotiations.

AMERICAN SEAPLANES

American seaplanes are to operate over the route. These machines are capable of a cruising speed of 175 m.p.h., and it has been calculated—partly from official flying times between London and Galway,

Halifax and New York, supplied by the Air Ministry—that on a conservative basis, and making due allowance for delays, the air journey from London to New York can be completed within 24 hours.

The scheme in its original form provided for a combined sea and air service, with Galway and Halifax as terminal points. As the result, however, of a meeting at the American Embassy last November between Mr. Stobbs, the United States Trade Commissioner, and Mr. Clendinning, the scheme was altered to a direct air service between Galway and Newfoundland. The change of plan was discussed with Captain McClenaghan, the Chief of the Air Department of the Irish Free State Government, who expressed the opinion that there would be no official objection to the alteration, and pointed out that his Department was aware of the importance of the Galway Newfoundland route.

FOG-FREE SITES

The next stage in the elaborate negotiations was an interview on January 30, at the American Embassy, when Mr. Clendinning and Mr. Maxwell Ayrton were received by the Air Attache, Captain Monahan. He informed them that the Sikorsky seaplane could put up a cruising speed of 175 miles an hour, and had accommodation for 62 passengers. Providing that suitable arrangements could be made at the terminal points, there seemed to be no reason, he declared, why the service should not be successfully operated.

Further conversations took place with the Civil Department of the Air Ministry, and at an important conference held at the offices in London of the Newfoundland Government, the question of finding a fog-free site in Newfoundland was fully discussed. As a result, Mr. Davis, the Trade Commissioner, supplied a map marked with the areas approved by his Government as follows:—Notre Dame Bay—Fog-free twelve months in the year, and ice-free nine months; Mortimer Bay—Ice-free twelve months in the year, and fog-free during the period that Notre Dame Bay is frozen.

It is intended that the new aerodrome at Furbough should be the focal point for existing services to and from all parts of Europe, passengers and mail being conveyed to the seaplane base for the Transatlantic flight. Alternatively, passengers and mail will be picked up after the ocean flight for transport to Britain and the Continent. The same service will be available at Notre Dame Bay.

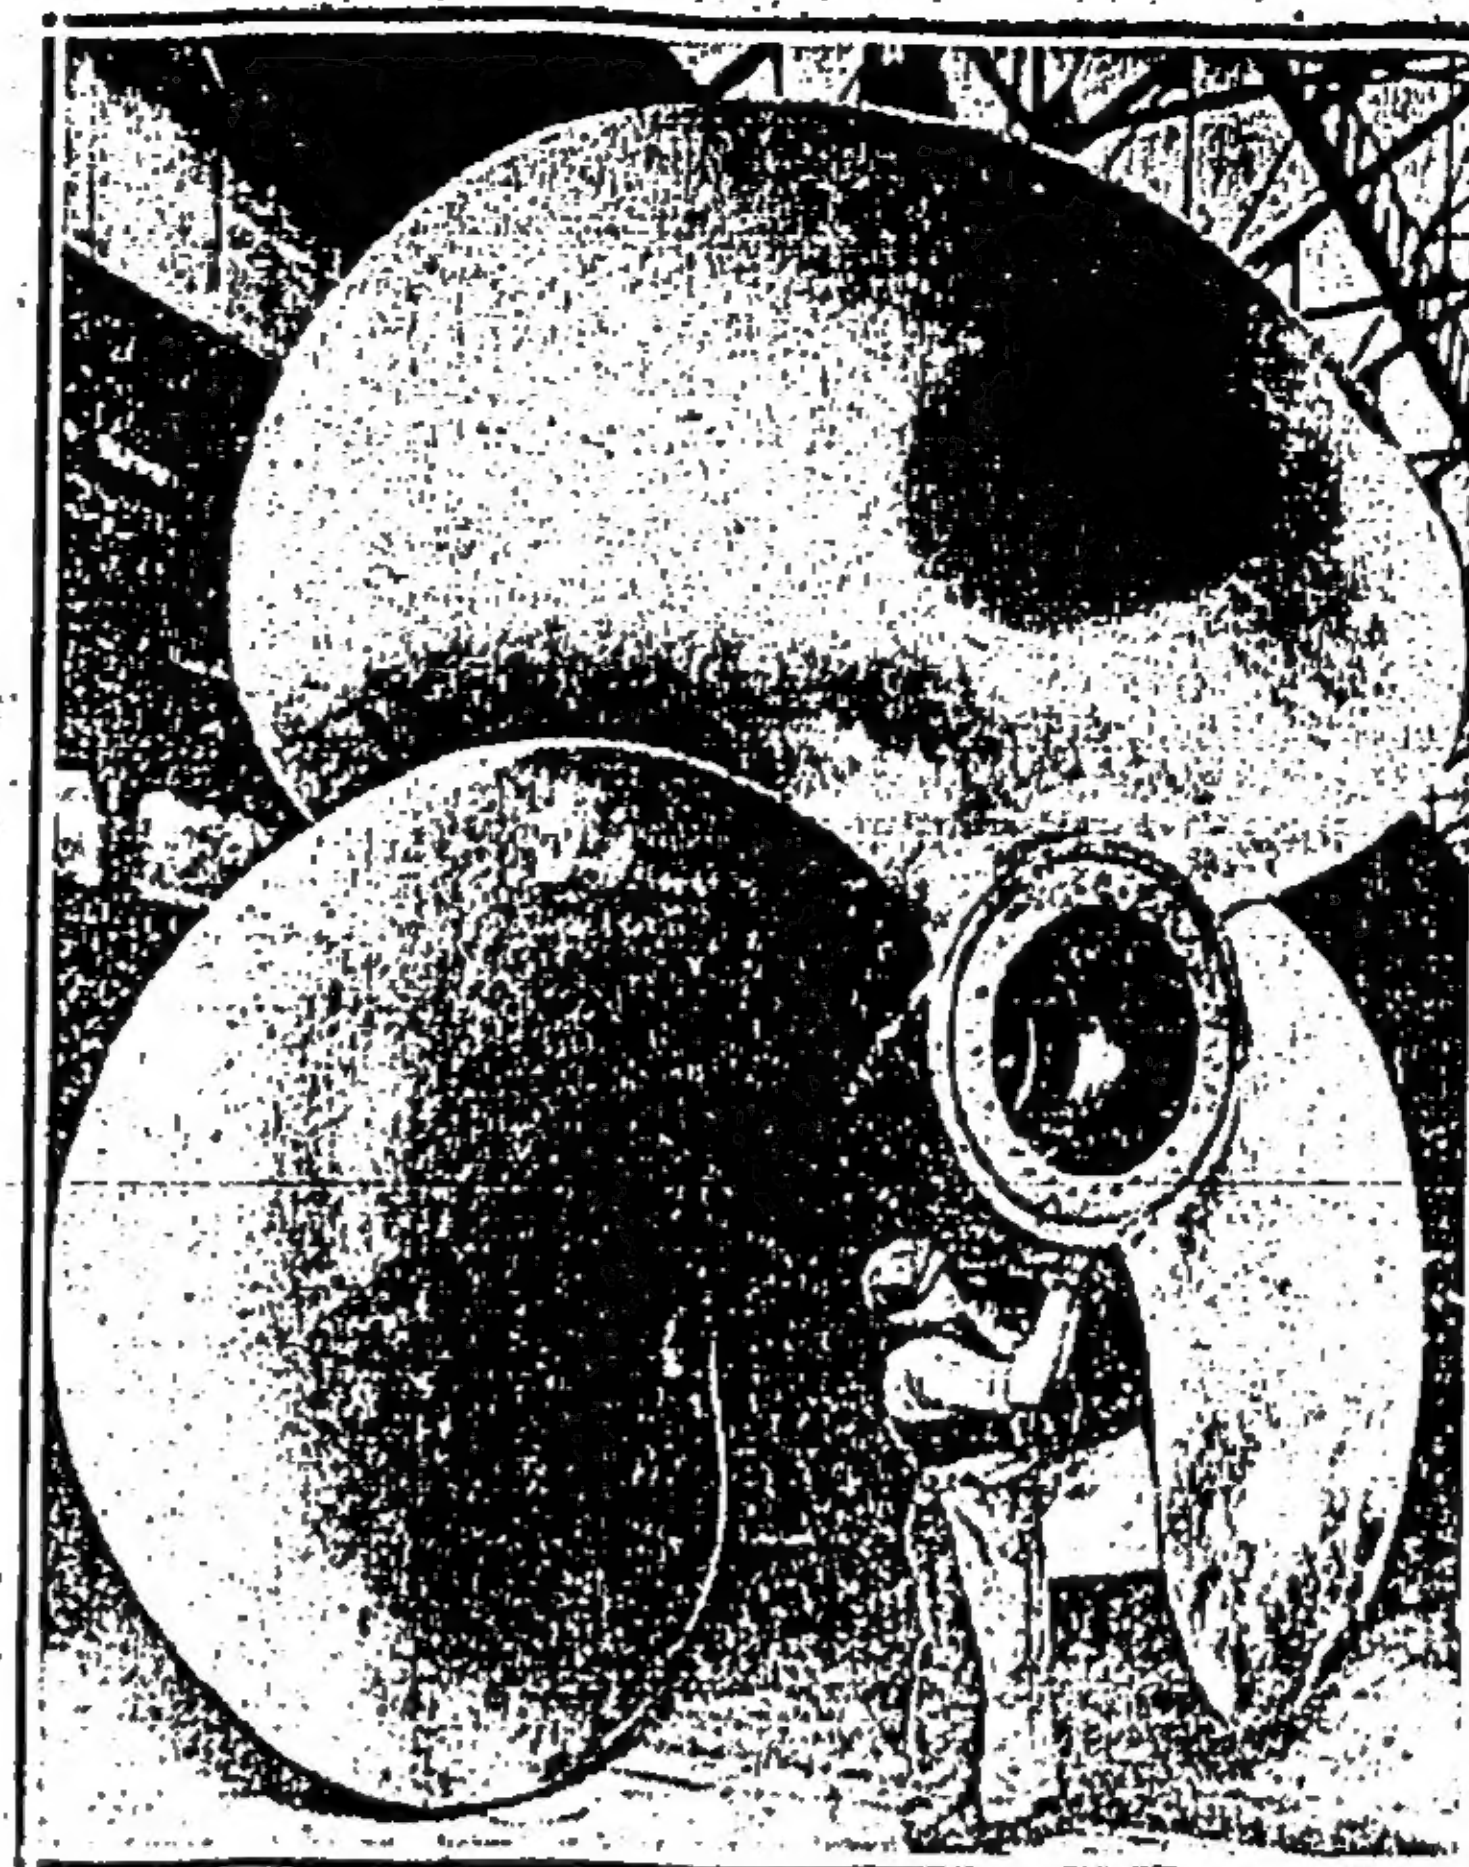

NO SHORTER ROUTE

Mr. Clendinning, in an interview said that the various Government experts who had been investigating the potentialities of the scheme had been impressed by the close juxtaposition of an excellent aerodrome site—chosen by an airman of international reputation—a natural seaplane base, and, within a mile, sufficient depth of water to allow the largest Transatlantic liner to berth at any state of the tide.

"The experts," he added, "have agreed with Captain McClenaghan's view of the economic importance of flying the Atlantic by the shortest and quickest route, and there is no shorter route between the Old World and the New than that between Galway Bay and Notre Dame Bay."

Mr. Clendinning is leaving shortly for New York, to discuss the schemes with American bankers interested in the project. The American Embassy in London is making the necessary arrangements for Mr. Clendinning to meet the chief of the Civil Air Department at Washington, and to visit the principal air operating and manufacturing companies under their auspices.

The original scheme was brought to the favourable notice of the U.S.A. Government by Mr. Sterling, formerly American Minister to the Irish Free State.

The liner Normandie, French challenge for shipping supremacy, is nearly ready for trials that will show whether it is the fastest as well as the biggest thing afloat. Four 15-foot propellers that will drive the 75,000-ton vessel across the Atlantic on its maiden voyage late in the Spring are ready to be attached. A workman is shown polishing the 23-ton screw, which was cast in England.

SCOTLAND YARD

HOW IT IS "MUCKIN' UP CRIME"

"Your Blinkin' squadrons are fair muckin' up crime." This testimony by an "old lag" to the efficiency of the police wireless organisation was cited in Air Marshal Lord Trenchard's report on the Metropolitan Police for 1934.

Wireless patrol cars resulted in 821 arrests being made during the second half of last year, the thieves often being caught in actual possession of the stolen car within a few minutes of the theft.

Lord Trenchard pays tribute to the increasing crime fighting efficiency of the police, but stresses the difficulties due to the growth of London and of the numbers of motor-cars. Districts which were only fields in 1933 are now miles of hopes ill-protected, and affording excellent opportunities for thieves.

Lord Trenchard emphasised the need for a wholesale enlargement of Scotland Yard, or the removal elsewhere. Every branch of police work had become immensely more complicated in the past forty years with its own group of experts and specialists. He complained that overcrowding hopelessly impeded administration. Many work in corridors by artificial light, and the criminal records continually needed piled up passages and floor to the ceilings.

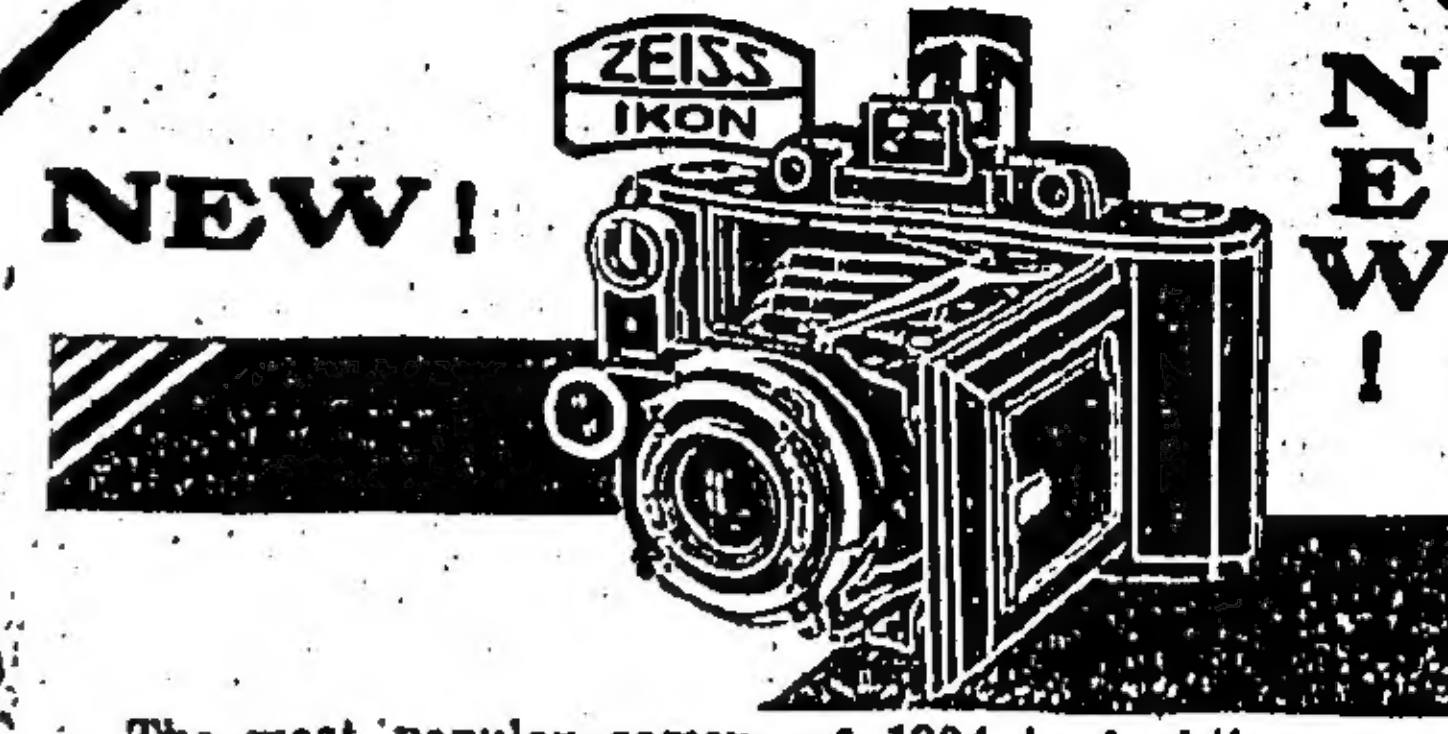

Senior officers often engaged in a most confidential conversation were crowded three or four together in tiny rooms. The fingerprint staff was jammed together like warehouse clerks in a Christmas rush.—Reuter.

With a state of war declared against rebels in all parts of Cuba, scenes like this became common in Havana, where President Carlos Mandata took steps to maintain his government despite the general strikes aimed at his overthrow.

Algeria is the Mecca of tourists, thanks to the people's picturesque manners. Especially the annual horse races, from which the above picture is taken, attract attention among the interested public owing to the riders' marvellous skill.

The most popular camera of 1934 is doubtless the ZEISS IKON

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE

Anxious as she has shown herself to be to meet any reasonable demands put forward by Germany, it would seem from Mr. Baldwin's latest speech that Britain is almost beginning to lose patience with Hitler's attitude on the European situation. It is clear, also, reading between the lines of Sir John Simon's utterance in Parliament, that the British Government is disappointed over the outcome of the recent Anglo-German talks in Berlin. Whilst there is no desire on the part of the war-time Allies to keep Germany in subjection, the point cannot be completely ignored that she was the loser in the Great War. But there is nothing in the present-day outlook of the Berlin Government which would suggest that that was the case; indeed, it is not too much to say that Germany appears at the moment to be adopting a role of dictating to the rest of Europe. This may be a hard saying, but it is difficult to resist the conclusion. She has bluntly disregarded the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty, both in regard to the strength of her Army and the creation of an Air Force, and, not stopping at this, is now infringing its provisions in the matter of naval construction. The development is all the more regrettable when it is borne in mind that the former Allies have for long been disposed to modify the Peace Treaty stipulations in Germany's favour. It is difficult, also, to comprehend Germany's attitude on the question of a collective peace—system implying mutual assistance, particularly her disinclination to enter into any such pact with Russia. Equally unfortunate is her desire to exclude Lithuania from any non-aggression pacts which may be devised. If there is one point more than another

NOTES OF THE DAY GUARDING INVESTORS

We published an interview with a well-informed Hongkong financial man yesterday in which he warned Hongkong shareholders against lending their scrip to operators who would use it in "bear raids" upon the local market. He pointed out that by so doing shareholders were supplying their worst enemies with ammunition; for with the scrip in their possession operators are able to tear down prices to levels which will enable them to buy back again, at a profit, return the scrip, or share of an equal amount to those originally borrowed, and collect their cash security. By this means an artificial depression could be encouraged, to the detriment of thousands of investors. We do not deny the honesty or value of "bear" trading, but we do most strenuously object to such practices as these. Bear traders unquestionably serve a useful purpose, but when the operation results in a loss of millions of dollars to investors in sound stocks, the usefulness becomes an offence. It is absurd that an investment which pays a steady seven and eight per cent. should have been pounded down below the par value of the shares; and that situation exists in Hongkong. That an exposure of what has been going on in Ice House Street should have been made by a man well acquainted with conditions there we are convinced every good citizen will applaud, as we do.

SPY SCARES

The development of the case against the steamer Juno, held by the Japanese authorities on suspicion that she was engaged in some sort of espionage in Japan's "fortified zone," will be watched with much interest everywhere. The Juno was under charter to a British concern by her Dutch owners and was operating in Far East waters when she was overtaken by a typhoon. She ran for the nearest shelter, according to the despatch from Tokyo, which happened to be in a bay of the Pescadore Islands, and because this shelter happened to be within that jealously guarded "fortified zone," she was immediately suspected of engaging in espionage and escorted, by a destroyer, to a place where the case will be investigated. What possible secrets she may have discovered, what highly valuable information may have been obtained while the typhoon raged along the coast, we are not prepared to guess. But it would seem likely that the attention of the master and the crew of this oil tanker was engaged for the greater part of the time in the perils which beset the ship. We are not suggesting that Japan has no right to restrict the passages of foreign shipping in areas where secret fortifications may exist; there is no good reason to dispute such regulations as are conceived to safeguard the secrets of Japan's defence works. But it does seem a trifle unjust that a master must imperil his ship and the lives of those aboard simply to avoid entering a shelter in the neighbourhood of shore batteries or an anti-aircraft observation post. It would seem that a broad view might be taken of such an instance as this last, particularly if, in the confusion of the storm, the Juno's master was forced to choose, almost literally, between the devil and the deep, deep sea.

which emerges from the present unsettled condition of Europe, it is that peace can best be served by means of a general system of collective security. Yet Germany flatly declines to come into any such scheme, thereby helping to perpetuate old rivalries and hostilities and forcing other nations into the bad old system of military alliances. The proposed Franco-Russian convention is an outgrowth of these developments. German disinclination to join hands with other nations in an effort to place European peace on a firm basis has naturally given rise to doubts as to her sincerity and her future intentions. These doubts can best be dispelled by Hitler and his colleagues implementing their pacific declarations by demonstrating a willingness to enter a general European understanding. In the absence of any such indication, Germany will only have herself to blame if her professions are taken with the proverbial grain of salt.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

George, nautical boy Prince.

Always it was the sea with the two sons of Edward and Alexandra; even before they were old enough to become cadets they showed an aptitude and a desire to become sailors.

The pictures above, for instance, show Prince George (right) as a lad of six attired in sailor's uniform. Note the twinkling look of mischief in his eye. He looks as though he would dearly love to play some prank on the photographer.

When Prince George was twelve, he and his brother, Prince Albert Victor, then heir to the throne, became naval cadets on the Britannia at Spithead. There they were accorded the same treatment as the other cadets.

Prince George loved it—perhaps even more than Prince Albert Victor. In the veins of the future king flowed the blood of Viking ancestors, for his mother, Queen Alexandra, was from Denmark, land of the Vikings.

During the two years on the Britannia Prince George won for himself the reputation for high spirits, ready wit and tremendous activity.

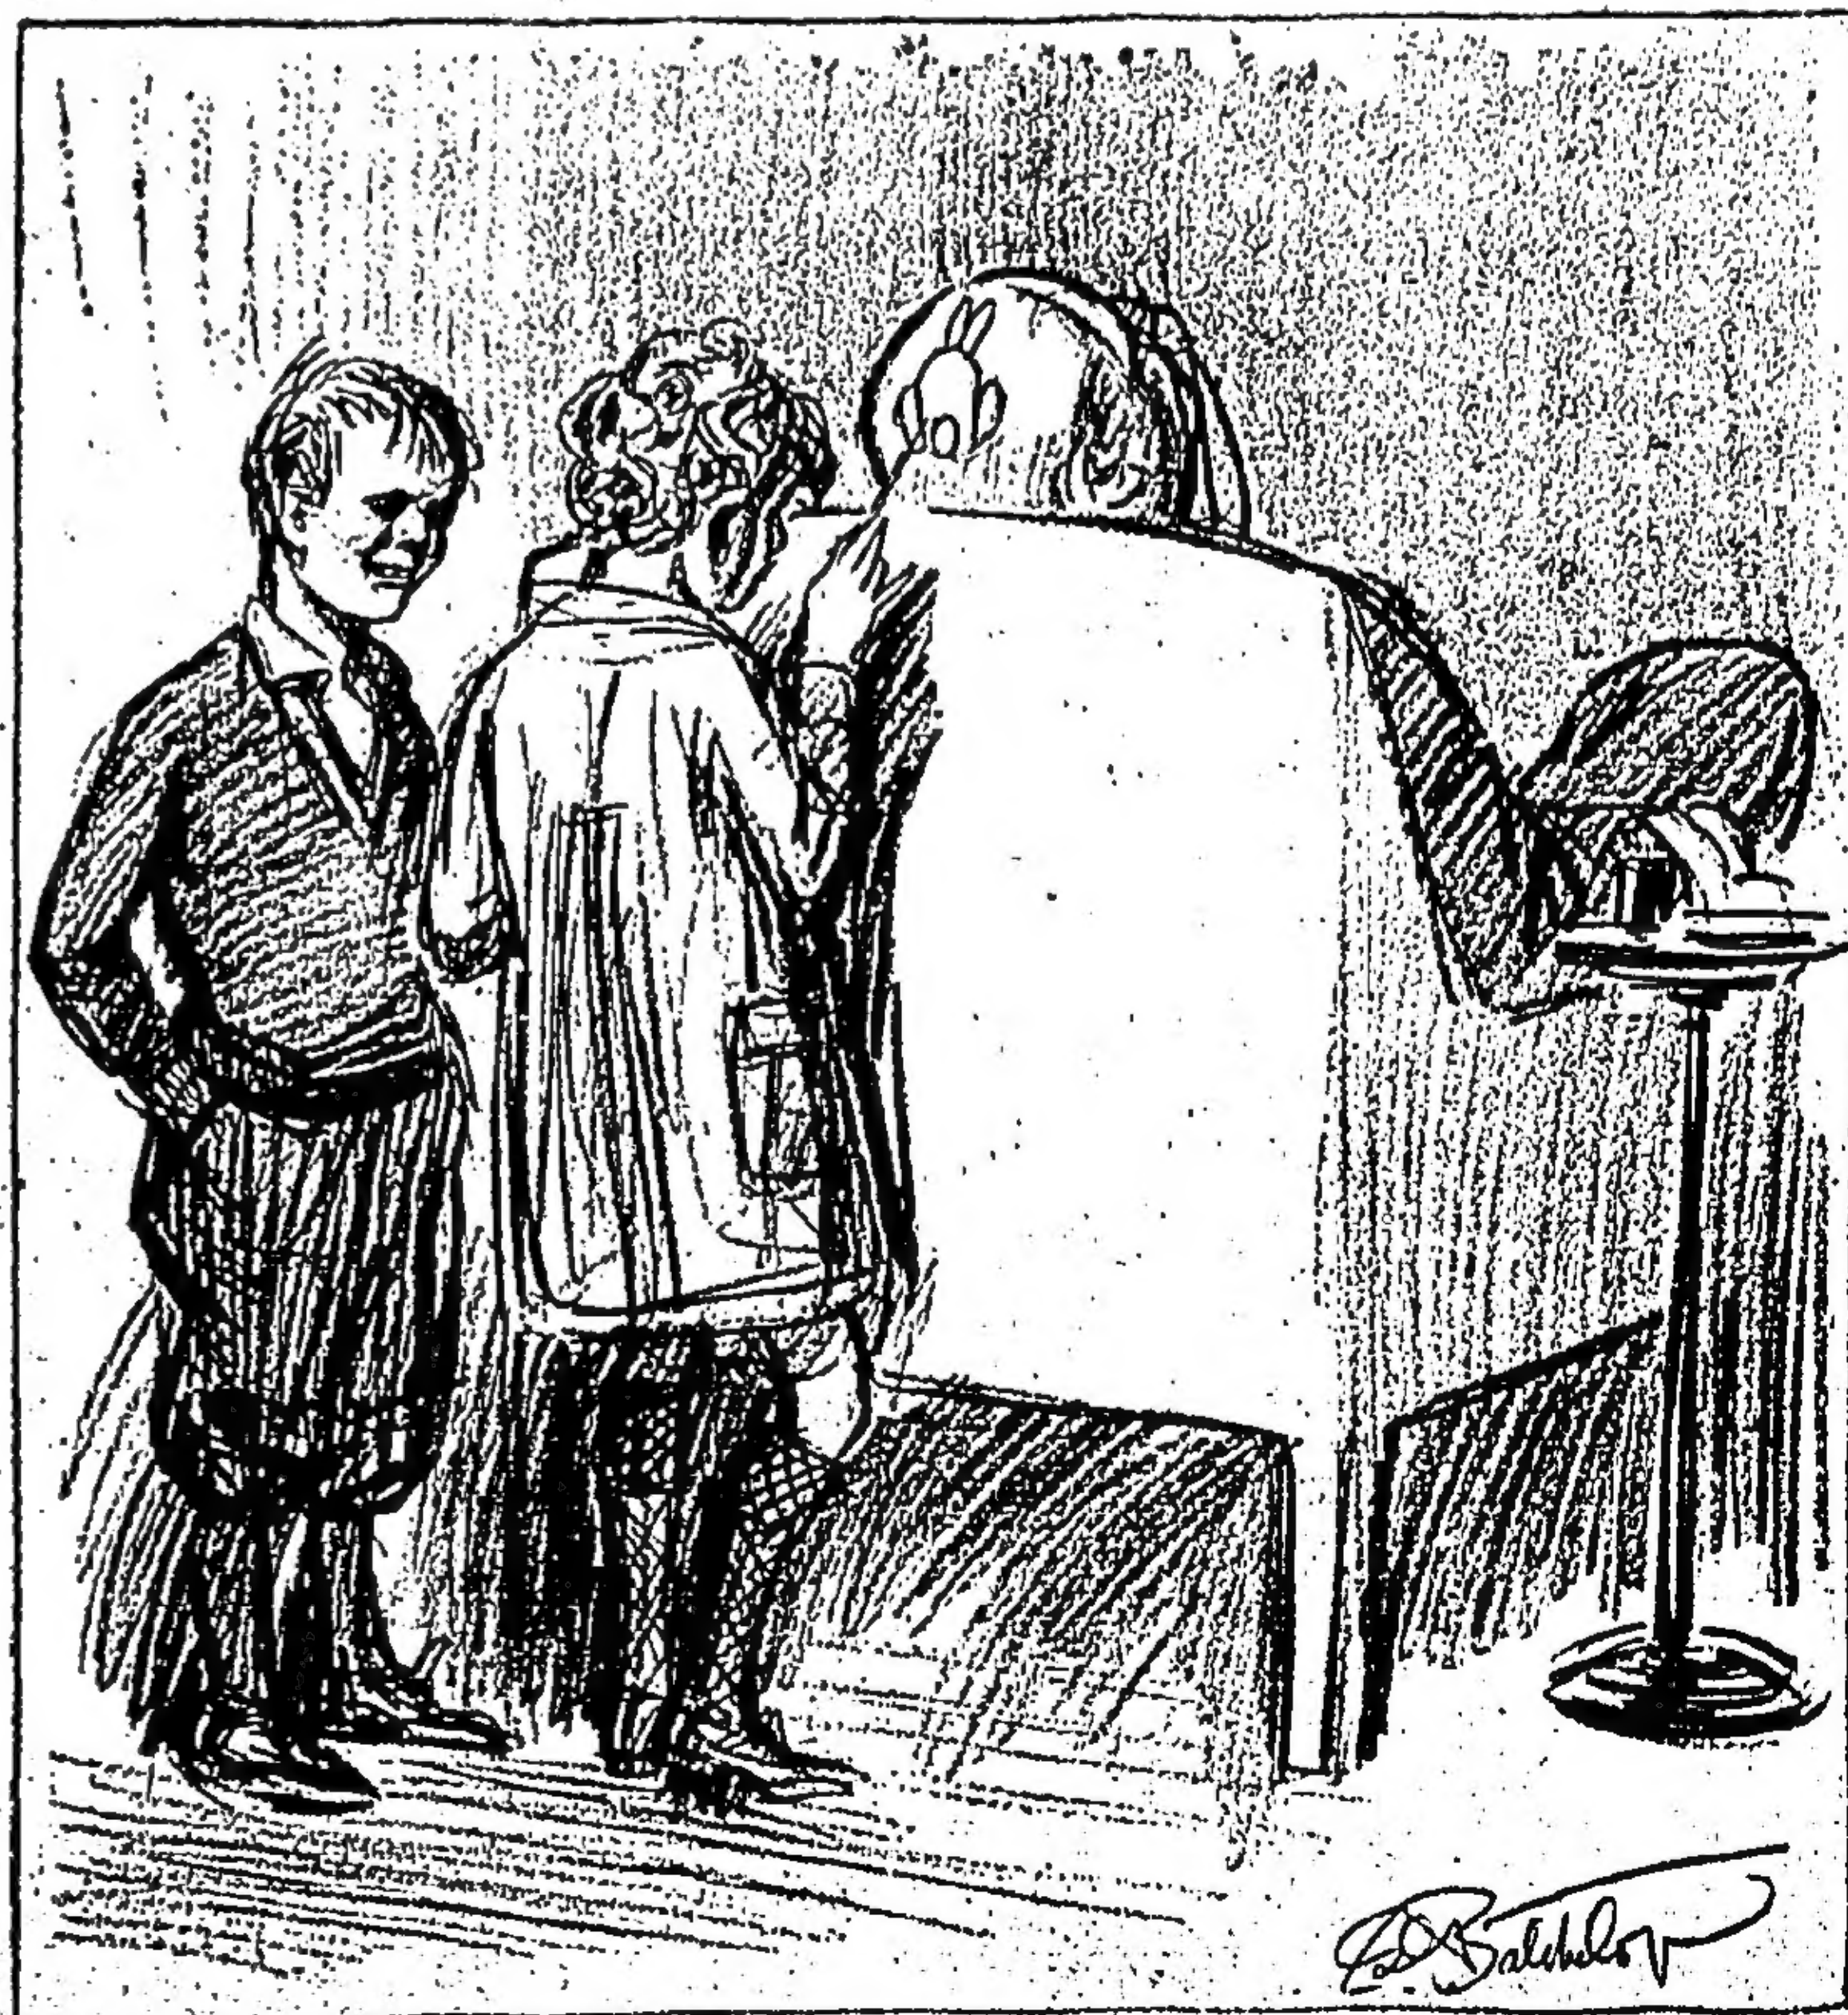

But his excess vigor was always held in check by the staid sobriety of his brother. Different in temperament, the two brothers nevertheless maintained a deep attraction for each other all during the short life of Prince Albert Victor.

The photograph at left, above, shows Prince George at the age of 16 as a young midshipman aboard the Bacchante, to which ship he was transferred after his apprenticeship aboard the Britannia. The brothers left on a long voyage on the Bacchante in 1879 (visiting Hongkong in the course of their cruise) and lived as all sailors live for three years on a cruise of more than 56,000 miles. It had a remarkable effect on the later life of Prince George, one day to be known as the "Sailor King."

A member of the ship's crew, describing the life on board the Bacchante, says: "I have seen King George mixed up in a heap of marines, stokers, and blue jackets, who had stumbled over each other in the gangway, enjoying it just as much as those who were down with them and pulling himself free with all his might."

Admiral Sir Charles Scott was the captain of the Bacchante throughout the cruise, and the first officer was Admiral Sir Assheton Curzon Howe. To the latter it is said the Princes owed a great deal of the seaman's knowledge they gained at this time.

A Little Hero at Last.

COL. EAVES HONOURED

VICTORIA RECREATION CLUB ANNUAL MEETING

A warm tribute to the work done by Lieut. Col. F. Eaves, Vice-Chairman of the Victoria Recreation Club, who is leaving the Colony on retirement, was paid by the Hon. Sir Thomas Southern, Chairman, at the annual meeting of the Club yesterday evening.

Sir Thomas said that Col. Eaves had rendered extraordinarily good services throughout the year and wished him long life and happiness in his retirement.

Replying, Col. Eaves said he was very sorry to leave the Club. He had never been in any club in his life in which he had had such a happy time. On the proposal of Mr. F. W. F. Ross, seconded by Mr. F. X. D'Almeida, Jun., Col. Eaves was unanimously elected an Honorary Life Member.

Referring to the annual report of the Club, Sir Thomas Southern, in the course of his speech, asked the meeting to stand in silence for a few minutes to pass a vote of condolence to the relatives of Mr. H. M. Remedios and Mr. A. M. B. Rocha, both members of the Club who died during the year.

Extra Windows
"You will notice in the report that the buildings have been kept in very good order," remarked the Chairman. "I think you will all agree with me that the putting in of windows on the eastern side of this hall, a matter which has been talked of for something like ten years, has added greatly to the comfort and amenities of this room."

Sir Thomas referred to the visit of the Japanese Far Eastern Olympic swimmers, who gave a flip to the Club with their magnificent exhibition. He offered hearty congratulations to Mr. Lawrence on his wonderful feat in the Colony Championships last year smashing both records for no less than four distances.

In rowing the Club managed to carry off the championship in the triangular contest and he congratulated the winning crews.

Badminton, a comparatively new sport introduced to the Club had had a very successful season.

The Club's accounts for the past year showed a profit of $2,463.

The report and statement of accounts was seconded by Col. Eaves and carried unanimously.

New Life Members

Sir Thomas announced, and duly applauded, that Mr. W. S. Bailey and Mr. E. M. Hazeland had been elected Life Members of the Club in recognition of their long membership and good services to the Club.

Sir Thomas also proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Secretaries, Treasurer and out-going Committee, which was carried with acclamation.

An honorarium of $300 each for the Secretaries, Messrs. F. W. T. Ross and Mr. J. M. Alves, and the Treasurer, Mr. H. Hyndman, was unanimously approved by the meeting.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chairman, Hon. Sir Thomas Southern; Hon. Secretary, Mr. D. Lopes; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. H. Hyndman; General Committee, Messrs. C. K. Rosa Pereira, R. J. Hunt, F. W. T. Ross, J. M. Alves, F. X. D'Almeida, Castro, Jun. S. A. Maren, F. P. Lendfesty, L. Rosa Pereira, and Dr. D. Laine.

Annual Report
The annual report reads as follows: The Club buildings are in good condition.

During the past year extensive repairs were made to the outside and inside of the buildings and the same were completely redecorated. The addition of four windows in the East wall of the Dance Hall, has, with the extra air and light thus obtained, very much improved this room for dancing during the Summer Months.

The Swimming Pool is in good condition, the pump, motor and filter having been thoroughly overhauled. New high and low diving springboards have been installed. The Club has had a very successful swimming season. The visit of the Japanese Far Eastern Olympic swimmers early in the year gave our swimmers an opportunity to see the latest strokes.

Under the auspices of the Club a team representative of the Colony's best swimmers was sent to Shanghai to compete in a triangular inter-colony against Shanghai and Tientsin. The team was unfortunate to lose to Tientsin; but by beating Shanghai retained possession of the Taggart Trophy. In Water Polo the team showed a marked superiority over Shanghai and won handsomely. Tientsin was not represented in this.

In the Swimming Championships open to the Colony our swimmers again did well. Wilfred Lawrence smashed all our best records for the 100, 220, 440 and 880 yards distances. The Annual Harbour Race, (again held with the Ladies and Gentlemen in one race), was a great success, Mr. Lawrence winning the men's event, and Miss D. Hunt winning the Ladies' race for the second time in succession and the third time altogether.

The Night Fete (except that given for the Japanese Swimmers) and the Colony Championships were rather poorly supported, consequently a loss was sustained in this direction. Mrs. Hunt very kindly presented the Open Championship and Club Prizes after the finish of the Harbour Race.

The Committee take this opportunity of thanking those who so kindly donated prizes or otherwise subscribed to the activities of the Club during the year.

Continued interest shown by the Rowing Members resulted in a win for the V.T.C. at the H.K.Y.C. closing cruise in April.

Racine Four
The replacement of "Old Four" mentioned in the last report did not materialize in that the builders furnished a racing four which had to be rejected owing to a considerable number of defects.

The funds raised by the kind help of members and friends to attain

VALUE OF ASIA

APPRAISEMENT ACCEPTED BY CHIEF JUSTICE

The final appraisement of $40,000 for the steamship Asia, now known as the Tao Maru, was accepted by Chief Justice, His Honour Mr. A. D. MacGregor, at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon. The appraisement was made by order of the Court following agreement as to the ship's value in the recent salvage case.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., instructed by Mr. O. E. C. Marton, was for Messrs. Wo Fat Shing, owners of the salvaging ship Shun Chi, while Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, represented the defendant ship.

His Lordship said he saw Mr. D. A. Purves on Tuesday morning, and in answer to certain questions which his Lordship had put to him, Mr. Purves said he had completed his appraisement as a result of a personal visit to the vessel before he was made aware of the offer of $42,000. Mr. Purves was, however, acquainted of that offer before he had put his appraisement into writing.

Even taking that offer into consideration, Mr. Purves came to the conclusion that there was no reason to cause him in any way to alter his original appraisement.

It had also been taken into consideration that the ship could be used only for one or two purposes. She could either be used for breaking-up, or she might find a purchaser who required a bulk for storage. The value of the former was much greater than the latter. The basis on which Mr. Purves worked was the market value on the day the salvage was completed (January 15). Nothing had been removed from the ship since her arrival.

His Lordship stated that Mr. Purves still maintained that his valuation of $40,000 was a fair and reasonable estimate of the true value of the ship. After seeing him, his Lordship had no reason to dissent from the conclusions which Mr. Purves had drawn.

Asked by his Lordship if he had anything to say, Mr. Sheldon replied there was nothing he could say.

PARLIAMENT'S RECORD

grown up between India and Burma. Accordingly, the Joint Select Committee recommended that there should be an interim period before the new Government became separated, and, as a result of discussions between the two Governments, the view was reached that the status for five years should be maintained, during which trade relations between India and Burma would continue as at present.

He invited the views of members as to the length of the interim period. He thought it would be wise to leave the two Governments to make the best arrangements they could for Burma and India, provided British trade did not suffer from the position. When the interim period ended, the British Government would be free to make whatever arrangements it could with the Government of Burma, where there ought to be wide opportunities for British trade.—British Wireless.

CAMPBELL STILL HOPEFUL
NEW SPEED EFFORT THIS YEAR
London, April 10.
Speaking of his aim to achieve a land speed of 300 miles per hour, at a luncheon to-day the racing motorist, Sir Malcolm Campbell, said he proposed to have another attempt before the year was out, and sincerely hoped that the Blackbird would reach that goal.—British Wireless.

RIVER CONSERVANCY
Tientsin, April 11.
An allotment of $73,000 for financing special conservancy work on the Yungting River this Spring, has been approved by the Chinese Economic Council. A sum of $20,000 has been paid in advance while the remainder is to be paid shortly out of the Economic Council funds.—Central News.

that object is still held for that purpose. It is hoped that the next attempt in the near future would meet with success.

The boat house is in a good state of repair, such boats as are available for use have been overhauled and kept in as good condition as is possible.

Although no regular form of training was undergone in the gymnasium during the year, individually this was very much used.

The Billiard Table has been in constant use and although it is not long since the cloth was renewed, it is beginning to again look the worse for wear; this will be attended to during the forthcoming year.

Badminton was taken up with great enthusiasm during the year, and although the dance hall where the every way suitable sufficient proficiency was attained by the members to enable us to enter a team in the second division of the Badminton League, with quite favourable results.

The Club regret to record the death of the following members during the year: Mr. H. M. Remedios and Mr. A. M. B. Rocha.

STEAMBOAT CO'S LOSS

FACING SERIOUS COMPETITION

A decreased volume of trade, coupled with surplus tonnage, competition not only by other lines but also by the Railway, high Customs tariffs, and instability of exchange, were among the factors enumerated by the Chairman (Mr. Li Tse-fong) as having contributed to a net loss of over $180,000 for the past year, at the ordinary annual general meeting of shareholders of the Hongkong, Canton & Macao Steamboat Co., Ltd., held at the offices of the Company, in Queen's Building, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Li Tse-fong was supported by Mr. M. K. Lo, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Bragg, Mr. C. A. de Rosa, Mr. Tung-fan Lo and Mr. H. S. Smith (Directors); and Mr. H. de Luz (Acting Secretary). The following shareholders were present: Messrs. Hung Tze-ye, M. H. Lo, M. Fernandez, Wei Tat, Kwan Yui-kong, Lai Fong, Li Kai-hong and Mr. C. S. Smith.

The Acting Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting and the report of the Auditors, the Chairman said:—The Directors' report and audited statement of accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will, with your permission, take them as read. The Directors are sorry that the result of the working for the year ended 31st December, 1934, again shows an adverse balance. The net loss for the year is $187,782.30 which, together with the debit balance of $122,703.66 brought forward from the 1933 account, brings the total to $310,486.96 at debit of the profit and loss account. The Directors recommend that this amount be carried forward to a new account.

In reviewing the operation of your Company's business during the past year, I do not think it necessary for me to refer in detail to the world-wide depression which affects shipping more than anything else. If any indication is wanted in order to show to what extent this Company has been affected, it suffices to state that the freight earnings during the year show a decline of about $100,000. Our passenger traffic also has suffered a heavy decline. This is mainly due to the fact that the Railway continued to draw away from the River the best part of this class of traffic.

Serious Competition
The present position of the River trade is far from satisfactory, due, undoubtedly, to a surplus of tonnage in relation to the present diminished volume of trade generally. Towards the end of last year a new competitor appeared on the scene, and the Company was faced with such a serious situation that we had no alternative but to lower our passage rates with a view to inducing some of our supporters to return to us.

In the Macao run the Company was also faced during the recent part of the year with intense competition offered by the S. Wing On. This steamer was eventually withdrawn after running for several months when it was realised that the amount of business between the two ports and trade conditions generally do not justify any additional tonnage on this line.

The instability of Exchange and the new and high Customs tariff are greatly handicapping both import and export business and tend further to minimise the already depleted trade on the River. As examples of the detrimental effects of the handicaps imposed on business, it may be mentioned that such staple commodities as sugar and cement which, in former years, formed a large bulk of the Company's carrying trade are no longer practically impossible to be imported into Canton with any hope of profit to dealers in those essential commodities.

Scale of Cuts
Your Directors have given close and careful attention to the question of economic running of your steamer, and they are now happy to be able to state that through the friendly co-operation of the Guilds a sliding scale of cuts in the salaries of officers of all ranks has been in force since September last year, when the difficult position of the Company was fully explained to them. The annual savings under this heading will amount to about $25,000.

Cost of repairs to steamers and wharves standing in the profit and loss account at $124,724.47 shows a slight reduction compared with that of the previous year. During the year under review two of the Company's steamers had to undergo special and extensive repairs for load line certificates, otherwise further economy would have been possible.

Your management are exercising great vigilance in regard to stores and other expenditure, and I am very pleased to be in a position to state that the contract for the supply of coal for the current year will result in a saving of about $30,000 to the Company.

In the profit and loss account you will notice a reduction in the amount of Directors' fees. Such reduction is an earnest of the expectation of the Directors' desire to share the burden of loss, if only in a small way, in view of the poor result of the Company's earnings.

The amount of $50,027.84 that it is proposed should be written off the value of your steamers is the usual 5% of their book value.

Investment Fluctuation Account shows a reduction during the year of $128,177.50, which represents the amount of depreciation in the market value of shares held by your Company as investment. In November last year your Directors decided to sell certain shares to meet the heavy overdraft with our bankers. That decision has been carried out.

Line did not work out as successfully as we had hoped, and your Directors at one time were seriously considering the question of giving up such a Pool. However, after prolonged and careful deliberation, they decided that it would be in the best interests of the Company to renew this Pool Agreement, with certain modifications that would tend, we hope, to make its working more successful.

At the announced invitation of the Economic Commission, an exhaustive memorandum dealing comprehensively with the difficulties besetting the Company's business and the obstacles created to acceptance of these difficulties has been submitted by your Directors to the Chairman of the Commission, for the consideration of the members of the Commission, on the 27th August, 1934.

Your Directors regret to inform you that, beyond a bare acknowledgment of that report, we are without any information as to how it has been received by the Commission. Nor are we acquainted with the recommendations or criticisms that might have been submitted to Government thereon.

Sympathy Invited
In the opinion of your Directors the statements contained in our Memorandum were worthy of the very serious consideration of the Commission—indeed of its sympathy and support. For over sixty years this Company has maintained an essential service greatly beneficial to the Colony and that has contributed in no small degree to its prosperity. Your Directors feel that we are entitled to some consideration and assistance from the Government of Hongkong, especially at a time when the difficulties in the Company's way are such as should enlist sympathy from the authorities. We have advanced cogent arguments for that sympathy.

I do not think that there is anything further in the accounts that requires any comment from me, but before I resume my seat, I would like to refer to Sir Robert Ho Tung's generous act towards this Company.

Sir Robert's Generosity

As you are doubtless aware, Sir Robert had to make a prolonged stay in Europe on account of his critical illness. Although legally entitled to remuneration during his enforced absence, Sir Robert, in view of the poor working of the Company, voluntarily refused to do so. The Company's Director's fees covering the period of his absence. Further, and solely because of the Company's financial position, he refunded to the Company 25% of the commission paid to him during his absence.

They are now at the disposal of the Manager, the Staff of the Chinese Department and for the collection and due payment to the Company of Chinese freight. On behalf of the Company I wish to place on record our sincere thanks to Sir Robert for his generosity in these matters. On account of the state of his health Sir Robert nominated Mr. Tung-fan Lo to act for him as an Alternate Director on the Board of the Company.

Your Directors have approved the nomination. I would like to take this opportunity of tendering to Sir Robert my sincere wishes for his speedy recovery so that he can once again take up an active part in the conduct of the Company's business.

With these remarks I beg to propose that the report and accounts as presented be passed. After this has been seconded by a shareholder I shall endeavour to answer to the best of my ability any question you may wish to ask.

There were no questions, and the proposal for the adoption of the report and statement of accounts was seconded by Mr. M. H. Lo and carried unanimously.

Other Business

The re-election of Directors was then proceeded with. On the proposition of Mr. Tung-fan Lo, seconded by Mr. C. S. Smith, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Bragg and Mr. C. A. de Rosa were re-elected to the Board of Directors.

The appointment of Mr. H. Staples Smith as a Director was confirmed, on the proposition of Mr. Wei Tat, seconded by Mr. Kwan Yui-kong.

Messrs. Linstead & Davis and Messrs. Love, Ellingham & Matthews were re-elected auditors for the ensuing year at a remuneration of $1,000 each, on the proposition of Mr. M. Fernandez, seconded by Mr. Tung-fan Lo.

That concluded the business of the meeting.

RECREIO SENIORS' SURPRISE BADMINTON DEFEAT

GLASGOW RANGERS IN THE FINAL

PLAY HAMILTON IN THE SCOTTISH CUP

London, April 10. Glasgow Rangers will meet Hamilton in the Scottish Cup final. To-day the Rangers, replaying their semi-final tie with Hearts, won by two clear goals. When they met a fortnight ago at Hampden Park the teams drew one-all.

Hamilton beat Aberdeen in the semi-final, winning by the odd goal in three. —Reuter.

TO-DAY'S TENNIS DOUBTFUL

DECISION TO BE MADE LATER

SEMI-FINAL OF OPEN DOUBLES

(By "Veritas")

Last night's heavy down-pour did the stand court no good and at the time of writing it has not been decided whether conditions will permit the semi-final in the open doubles being played.

The Rumjahn cousins, holders of the title are due to meet Lee Wai-tong and Paul Kong, last-minute conquerors of the Tsui brothers.

This ought to be one of the best matches of the tournament, and rather than send the players out to perform under difficult conditions it would be better to postpone the tie until the weather is fair.

If they do play to-day I expect to see the Rumjahn cousins win in four sets. It is odds on they will lose the first unless Lee and Kong are attacked with nerves and play below form. The cousins are very slow starters and always need a set in which to work up. Kong and Lee, of course, are quite capable of sending the match the whole distance, but somehow I think four sets will be sufficient.

DRASTIC POLICY BY FULHAM

Manager Dropped

On the authorities of Mr. John Dunn, the chairman of Fulham, it is learnt that James Hogan is no longer serving the club in the capacity of manager-coach, a post to which the old Fulham, Swindon and Bolton Wanderers players were appointed last June. Meanwhile, it is sign that the club has made an application to the F.A. for Frank Osborne, their former player, to sit on the board of directors. Rule 37 of the F.A. prohibits a professional, or a professional registered after April 30, 1924, to take part in any form of football management; but that when such a person gives notice in writing that he has ceased to play football the Council have the option to exempt him from the operation of this rule.

LOSE TO SECOND STRING

MIXED DOUBLES

TITLE NOT YET LANDED

(By "Veritas")

Scoring an exceedingly clever win over their seniors on Tuesday, Recreio "B" went a long way towards winning the mixed doubles badminton league. They have to beat the "A" team once more to claim the title.

Weakened by the absence of Eddie Sousa, the Recreio first string found their "Understudied" far too well balanced to be able to make up this handicap. A. M. Silva deputised for Sousa and played with Mrs. Sousa, but apart from a close match with H. Alves and Miss O. Ribeiro they could make no impression.

As a result of their losing all three games, the "B" team won by five games to four, and have now won all ten matches played.

FINE RECOVERY

A. Rodrigues and Miss C. Silva were outstanding for the winners, although it required a wonderful recovery on their part to beat M. Oliveira and Miss M. Basto. The losers enjoyed a long lead at one stage, but their opponents came back very strongly and eventually won by 21-18.

The full scores of this interesting match follow.

A. Rodrigues and Miss C. Silva (Recreio "B") beat J. J. Remedios and Miss M. Silva 21-8; beat M. Oliveira and Miss M. Basto 21-18; beat A. M. Silva and Mrs. C. Sousa 21-7.

L. Carvalho and Miss A. Remedios (Recreio "B") lost to Remedios and Silva 8-21; lost to Oliveira and Basto 8-21; beat Silva and Sousa 21-13.

H. Alves and Miss O. Ribeiro (Recreio "B") lost to Remedios and Silva 7-21; lost to Oliveira and Basto 7-21; beat Silva and Sousa 21-17.

SUNDERLAND MISS GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Defeat Affects Chances For Championship

RESULTS OF HOME FOOTBALL

London, Apr. 10. Sunderland lost a wonderful chance of increasing their challenge to the Arsenal for the league leadership to-day when they lost to Manchester City by the only goal scored. In consequence of this the Arsenal now lead Sunderland by three points and have a match in hand. A championship-winning position at this end of the season.

Manchester City, who are placed third naturally improved themselves by this win, but with the same number of games played they are still one point behind Sunderland and four points in arrears of the Arsenal.

Derby County, who are also among the leaders, suffered an astonishing defeat, when they entertained Preston and lost by three clear goals.

In the second division, Bolton, who are now almost out of the running for promotion snatched a point at Barnsley, both teams scoring once.

HAMILTON JOLTED

Hamilton, hot challengers to Celtic for second place in the Scottish League met with a severe reverse when they journeyed to St. Johnstone and were beaten by three goals to one. The Saints now come into the picture, being two points behind Hamilton with a game in hand and three points behind Celtic with the same number of matches played.

Golf Competitions At Fanling

In the Royal Hongkong Golf Club Ladies' Section L.G.U. Medal Competitions played at Fanling on Tuesday, the winners of the prizes presented by Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mrs. J. B. Ross, were as follows:

Silver Division—Mrs. Redmond (98-10-78). Mrs. Williamson, tied with 82-14-78, but Mrs. Redmond won on the result of the second nine holes.

Bronze Division—Mrs. Rivers (93-20-78).

GOLF TITLE LOST BY PUTT

Brave Fight By Sisters

London, Mar. 18.

Miss Doris Chambers, 1923 Open champion, and Miss Heather Palmes, representing Camberley Heath, won the Ladies' London Fouromes at Wentworth yesterday by defeating Misses Mervyn and Pam Barton (Royal Mid-Surrey) on the last green.

The final was a thrilling display of really fine golf, the winners being round in 78, the losers 79.

Camberley Heath led from the second hole to the 13th, where the youthful sisters drew level, having won two holes running.

SOUND PUTTING

Miss Chambers, whose second putt greatly helped her side, continued the good work by holing an excellent putt for a half on the 14th, after Miss Palmes's grand pitch from deep sand behind the green.

On the 16th Miss Pam Barton failed to carry the heather on the second shot and Miss Mervyn could not get far out, nor sink the putt after her sister's tricky run up. Camberley Heath were thus one up with two to play.

Miss Pam must be credited with a brave shot to the short hole after seeing her opponent safely on, and that hole was halved in three.

At the last hole Miss Pam's grand brassie shot would have got the green had it been slightly more to the left, but although it was trapped her sister kept the door open with a fine recovery.

FAILED NARROWLY

Camberley Heath being safe for a five, Miss Pam made a brave effort to get a four to save the match, but it just failed.

The Misses Barton were two over four in beating Sunningdale (Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Gallathly) by seven and six in the semi-final, having seven one-putt greens.

In the Camberley Heath versus Thorndon Park encounter the golf was somewhat like the curate's egg, but there were interesting fluctuations until Mrs. Percy Canon and Miss Joy Wynn simply wallowed in trouble to lose the 16th and 17th.

AFFECTED BY NERVES

BROTHERS' POOR TENNIS

HO & HUNG WIN EASILY

(By "Veritas")

Nervous reaction to the importance of appearing on the stand court against a combination nominated in many quarters as chief rivals to the Rumjahn cousins this year contributed in no small measure yesterday to the very indifferent display of the lu brothers against Ho Ka-lau and Willie Hung when they met in the quarter-final of the open doubles championship.

The brothers played 15 below the standard shown by them in their previous round match and were so hopelessly outclassed in the early stages that the winners ran away with seven games in a row before being checked.

Because of the losers' disappointing play and the fact that in consequence Ho and Hung could take things easy, the match was not of the type to earn paeans of praise from the critics.

NEAT AND CONVINCING

Ho and Hung played neat and convincing tennis; they nearly always had a winning shot to pull out if at all extended, and their domination of the exchanges was illustrated by the fact that they occupied the forecourt for three parts of the match.

Hung produced some very stylish strokes, his best being crisp volleys which were generally too fast and too well placed for the lux to be able to counter.

Ho Ka-lau indulged in his usual steady game, volleying confidently, although not always to the best effect, and lobbing with excellent judgment.

The winners quickly discovered that Lu Tak-lam was the weak link on the other side of the net and they concentrated on him. Tak-lam could not time correctly and he sent a stream of shots out of the court. He had prominence thrust upon him, and as it was impossible for a player of his calibre to make mistakes all the time, he also enjoyed the distinction of bringing off some of the cleverest shots of the match. It was his inconsistency which ruined these moments.

COLD-SHOULDERED

In Tak-cheuk could not get enough of the ball. He was doubly as steady as his brother, but without doing some blatant and risky poaching, it was difficult for him to take a leading part in the exchanges. He therefore found himself confined to occasional smashing and volleying.

The brothers could do nothing right in the first set and lost it to love. Ho and Hung also secured the first game of the second set before their opponents received just reward for all-round improvement. But there was never any holding the winners, and although the brothers snatched a third game after being 2-5 in arrears, it was only delaying the result.

TO-DAY'S SOCCER POSTPONED

To-day's Hongkong League football matches have been postponed.

The Royal Artillery and Navy were scheduled to meet in first and second division matches this afternoon, but several ships have left the harbour, and the games have been called off.

PLAYING LIKE CHAMPIONS

RECREIO WIN AGAIN

LAST EVENING'S FOOTBALL

Kowloon .. 2 Recreio .. 6

Kowloon: Cairns, Everest and Eastman, Sinclair, Bliss and Boyd; Willis, Oppenheim, G. White, V. White and Knox.

Recreio: Marques, A. V. Gosano and Bowen, Silva-Netto, Beltrao and Marques, D'Aquino, Delgado, B. Gosano, Gomes, and Alves.

If the Recreio had not delayed their resuscitation for so long they might to-day be contesting South China "A" for the championship instead of going strong for the runners-up honours.

In this match, as against the Club last week, they indulged in impressive football. They were every bit value for such a decisive win, and if the early exchanges had found the forwards staidier before goal they would have probably reached double figures.

Kowloon were gallant losers, and it says much for them that although strictly on the defensive for practically the whole of the match, they held on to a goal lead for the best part of the first half.

THEY JUST HAD TO BE GOOD

Recreio half backs and forwards caught the eye. Beltrao was a splendid pivot and enjoyed having a couple of steady workers on either side of him. Gomes and Alves were brilliant attackers and made things easy for their colleagues. Delgado benefited by their enterprising approach work, scoring three more or less "gift" goals. Bernie Gosano's skilful distribution of the ball was another feature.

It was only in accordance with the run of the play that the leading lights in the Kowloon team should be the defenders. They had to be good to prevent Kowloon from being completely overrun.

Cairns gave a good account of himself between the sticks, and Eastman again proved that he is a full back and not a forward. His lively defending was one of the chief obstacles to the Recreio forwards.

Bliss was again prominent in his destructive work, but he seems to have lost the art of opening up attacks. Because of this the forwards had rather a hard time, being forced to fetch and carry in order to make any progress.

Oppenheim revealed promise at right, and C. White was a hard-working leader. But the attack lacked cohesion and Gosano and his colleagues were never extended.

SECOND DIVISION MATCHES

Engineers & South China Win

Although winning by the odd goal in three, the Royal Engineers, this year's Junior Shield finalists, did not impress against the Artillery when they met in a second division match yesterday. However the Suppers rested three of their regular players in view

Tennis Champion At Sixteen

London.
John Bromwich, the sixteen-year-old ambidextrous player, defeated yet another Davis Cup player, when in the semi-final of the South Australian Championships he beat A.K. Quist by 6/4 5/7 7/9 6/3 6/0.
This performance is definitely the best in the youngster's career. The match lasted three hours. Safety first tactics of Quist allowed the patient Bromwich time to make his shots.

Bromwich numbers among his recent victims Enrique Maier and Vernon Kirby, Davis Cup representatives of Spain and South Africa respectively.

Following this victory Bromwich defeated D.P. Turnbull by 6/1 9/11 6/7 6/3 6/2 in the final round.

The match was a gruelling affair, lasting two and a half hours. Fierce heat prevailed throughout.

South Wales Borderers At Indian Station

Readers may be interested to hear that the South Wales Borderers who left Hongkong in November of last year with such an enviable sporting record in the Colony, have begun well in their new Station in India by winning the Rawalpindi District Athletic Championships.

It is also interesting to note that amongst the other teams competing at this meeting were the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (who were fifth), and the 3/9 Jat Regiment who were second in the Indian Units Championships. Both of these regiments, it will be remembered, were stationed together with the 24th Regiment in Hongkong in the year 1931-1932.

The 24th Regiment won the High Jump, the Long Jump, the Hurdles and the 100 yards Relay Race—which event was done in the splendid time of 43.2/5 secs. a record for the Punjab.

In the Individual Events, Cpl. Hughes of the Regiment won the Long Jump with a jump of 20ft. 2 1/2 ins. It is worthy of note that Cpl. Hughes won this event for two years in Hongkong.

Two cases of Diphtheria were reported to the local Health authorities on Tuesday.

FAULTY BRAKES

CHINESE WOMAN DRIVER DISCHARGED

Remarking that the Wai Man Garage, who repaired the car's brakes, were more to blame, Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon cautioned Miss Leung Yim-wah, driver of Austin car No. 140, on a summons for having inefficient brakes.

Yu Wing, co-partner and No. 1 at the Wai Man Garage, was reproved by the Magistrate, who recommended him to learn something about his job and that if he did not know any more about cars than just measuring skid marks he was a danger to the public. "Don't be so stupid in future," said his Worship.

Traffic-Inspector Nicol appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. P. H. Sin was for the defence.

Traffic-Sergeant T. McInnis, motor vehicle inspector, Kowloon, testified that on March 5 when going down the slope from the Water Police Station the brakes failed to hold the car. The car was generally in a bad condition.

Cross-examined by Mr. Sin, witness agreed that the brakes would function properly if the cable were tightened. He added that cable brakes when in good condition should not slacken even if the brakes are jammed on violently.

Car Inspected

The Court then adjourned for a few minutes to inspect the car. On resumption, Sergeant McInnis, replying to his Worship, stated that he had 13 years' experience of cars. The present condition of the brakes of the car was fair, and much superior to when he saw them on March 5.

Wong Kan, 20, fitter at the Wai Man Garage, Tai Po Road, testified that on March 1 the car was brought to the garage for repairs to the brakes and self-starter. The brakes were cleaned, readjusted and tested. At a speed of 20 miles an hour the skid mark on the road measured only three feet.

Yu Wing, co-partner and No. 1 employee at the garage, gave corroborative evidence, after which the Magistrate remarked that the defendant had been possibly led astray by the Wai Man Garage, and administered a caution. He recommended defendant to have the car thoroughly overhauled, as it was not in a fit state to be on the road at the present time.

SERIAL STORY

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Luna Lu Brookman

CHAPTER XXXIX

Joe Gillespie faced the men and women crowded into the small room. His dark hair was tossed, unruly, and his eyes were shining.

"Follow workers," he began in a hoarse voice, "you know what we're here for tonight. You know that the bosses are trying to break us in a new way. They've tried firing us. That wasn't enough. They found out they couldn't starve us, so now they're turning us into the streets."

A gruff voice interrupted. "We got rights the same as other people."

"Yes," Gillespie answered. "Two got rights, but what difference does that make? Do you think Thatcher cares anything about your rights? Work and go hungry, that's what he says, so he can live in a swell house with a lot of servants and ride around in a big automobile. Work and go hungry and live in the streets so him and rest can pile up more dividends. Is that fair?"

Every voice in the room seemed to answer.

"Are you going to stand for it?"

"No!"

Gillespie's voice rose louder. "You all know what happened to Mary Cassidy—a woman with two little children to support, thrown out of her job and then out of her home. Two more families got eviction notices to-day. They're going to put them out in the streets, too. And they'll put the rest of you out if they get the chance!"

"We ain't goin' to give them the chance!"

It was a girl with flaming red hair who spoke up. Others joined in. "You bet we ain't! No, we ain't goin' to give 'em the chance!"

"You said it!" Joe Gillespie's eyes flashed boldly. "I'm glad to know you feel that way. I thought you would. But you folks know, don't you, there's only one way to get what's comin' to us? We've got to fight for it!"

"That's the stuff, Joe!" The voice came from the rear of the room, high-pitched, emotional.

"You can lie down and take it, slave and take your cuts and be kind to 'em, when the bosses are through with you, or you can stand up and fight. Which are you going to do?"

"We'll fight!" The chorus grew louder.

Gillespie raised a hand for them to hush, went on: "If we're going to fight, the first thing we've got to do is get some more members. One of the rights the bosses forget belongs to us is the right to organize for collective bargaining. They don't admit we got the right to form an organization at all. Because they're afraid about it, four of us lost our jobs."

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Written by Charles Condon, noted author, who himself has been employed in motion picture studios, and whose works include a number of the most authentic articles on screen production, "The Crime of Helen Stanley" which starts a three-day run to-day at the Queen's Theatre is one of the most true-to-life stories of motion picture studios ever to come out of Hollywood. This mystery tale, which features Ralph Bellamy as Inspector Trent, tells the story of the murder of Helen Stanley, volatile temperamental and selfish motion picture star, who is shot before the gaze of a hundred people, while enacting a scene before the cameras. Various persons are suspected, and before the crime is finally solved, the spectator has spent not only an intensely interesting hour, but one that takes him behind the scenes in a studio in a way which no other picture, to date, has ever attempted. Practically every phase of screen production is shown in the picture, from the angle of the cameraman, electrician, studio directors and others. Those suspected of the murder are an electrician, a cameraman, a business manager, an actor, the star's bodyguard and a script girl. The solution of the crime is reached by employing photographic science, very interesting as viewed on the screen, and doubly so when it is used as the means of solving the deep mystery of the murder. Gail Patrick portrays Helen Stanley, the temperamental actress while Shirley Grey is cast as her sister, the script girl for the studio. Though involved in the murder she is finally vindicated. Others in the cast are Ward Bond, Vincent Sherman, Bradley Page, Keno Richmond and Clifford Jones. Page, one of the most noted of the screen heavies, again plays a villainous part, in which he attempts to rob the beautiful Helen of some $50,000.

"The Last Gentleman"

One of the unusual features of the production of "The Last Gentleman," George Arliss' newest starring vehicle for Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck's 20th Century Pictures Company, was the construction of the complete lower floor of a house intact, on one stage. Film sets are usually made up of single-room units, distributed around the various stages of a studio. Occasionally rooms ad-

The girl with red hair was leaning forward. She cried out, "We're with you, Joe! Somebody else added. They can't scare us that way!"

The speaker went on. "It's got to be hard work," he warned. "You all know the mill is full of stool pigeons. You've got to be awful careful who you talk to!"

A small man with a scar on one cheek said, "I got a report to make, Joe. It's about something that happened in the shipping room. Can I make it now?"

Gillespie said, "Sure. Go ahead."

He moved back and the man with the scarred cheek got to his feet. "Fellow workers," His voice droned on for half an hour.

It was the following afternoon. Gale tilted the umbrella against the wind and walked more rapidly. She didn't mind the rain; she rather liked it. It smelled fresh and clean and spring-like. Almost any other evening she would have enjoyed the walk to the drug store. It was a long, dark street in a neighbourhood that was almost deserted. That was why Gale was hurrying. She wanted to get home before darkness settled down; the sky would darken early on account of the rain.

"If I'd only thought to tell Phil!" Gale scolded herself. She had taken the prescription for her father's medicine to be refilled. But she had forgotten and the bottle of medicine was empty.

Mary Cassidy was cooking the Hendersons' evening meal, so that Gale was able to slip away on the errand. Mary was trying so hard to be helpful. And she had been helpful, too. In a house Mary knew exactly what to do and how to do it. Gale thought, "She ought not to work in a mill. She ought to be home, taking care of the children."

"What! Mary wasn't working in the mill now?"

Mary's troubles, during the last few days, had made Gale think much less about her own. Mary wasn't much older than Gale, but she looked years older. Alone in the world except for two helpless children—without anything to look forward to except a struggle that would grow harder as time went on. Where was Sid Cassidy, Mary's husband? Why wasn't he there to help her?

No one in town knew what had become of Mary. Never more than two years since his sudden disappearance. It wasn't such an uncommon thing for husbands to disappear that way. They lost their jobs or got into debt and became discouraged. Some, they thought, expected to come back for their families or send for them after times were better, after they got on their feet again. Maybe they thought that when they left, for them ever came back.

Gale thought, "I suppose Mary was in love with Sid once—or thought she was." Hard to imagine tired, careworn Mary as a moon-struck young thing, blushing, sighing, primping in front of a mirror before a date. Hard to reconcile that picture with Mary as she looked to-day. Gale put the thought from her. She didn't want to think about love. That was something she was through with.

She had come to a brighter district. The drug store was just a few steps ahead. "Schonbaum's Drug Store," the sign read. There was a display of small articles—shaving cream, tooth paste, hair tonic—in the window and behind them a brightly printed poster showing a pretty girl in a red dress, holding a glass of some beverage. Schonbaum's was a small place but the proprietor was friendly. He would let Gale have the medicine and wait until next week for the money.

She lowered her umbrella and pulled the door open. There was no one in sight but a young man who was inspecting something inside the glass counter. He wore a trench raincoat and a brown hat. Even before he turned, Gale recognized that raincoat. It was Brian Westmore's!

There was no limit to doing anything except alone there, feeling her heart pound wildly, knowing the colour had risen in her cheeks, hating herself because of it.

Brian looked surprised, too. He said, "Hello," and then, a moment later, "The proprietor seems to have gone out."

The store looked strange without Mr. Schonbaum with his round, red face and shiny, bald head. He should have been behind the counter, peering at them over the rims of his spectacles, clearing his throat and saying, "Ahem—what can I do for you?" No, Mr. Schonbaum was no where in sight.

Gale said, "I wonder where he's gone?" She tried to make her voice sound natural but the effort wasn't entirely successful.

"If I don't suppose he can be far away," Brian went on. "He'll probably show up in a moment or two."

Gale caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror behind the counter and saw that her cheeks were shining. She tapped at a wisp of hair and stepped back, pushing it into place. Meeting Brian anywhere was bad enough. Meeting him like this, with her face red, her clothes wet and limp from the storm, was a calamity. They stood there, each waiting for the other to speak.

Gale thought, "This is ridiculous. I won't stay any longer. I'll make an excuse and get away—anywhere."

And yet she lingered.

now at the King's Theatre. "Possibly the most ludicrous thing about 'Society Doctor' is the picture made fifteen years ago is the sight of the old-fashioned clothes. Yet if the scenes or stills of Pat Peterson in 'Lottery Lover' are reviewed fifteen years hence they will not even raise an eyebrow. They are simply the pretty pictures of soft clinging materials and pastel colouring, which enfold the wearer rather than fit her and which have no particular style or period by which they can be described. Miss Peterson is among the few present-day women who can look gorgeously and softly feminine attire without the words 'chic,' 'elegant' and 'up to date' are superfluous. Lew Ayres and Peggy Fears are also featured in 'Lottery Lover' and other players are Sterling Holloway, Alan Dinehart, Nick Moran and Reginald Denny.

"Kansas City Princess"
 Gales of laughter swept through the audience at the Central Theatre last night, when the Warner Bros. comedy romance, "The Kansas City Princess," was shown on the screen locally for the first time. In this production Warner Bros. have mixed up a lot of wiles and loveliness, husbands and sweethearts that is the last word in spicy and hilarious comedy. The cast includes some of the finest comedians of the screen. Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, two gold digging manufacturers never enacted better characters in their careers. Never has Hugh Herbert been more droll than as the rich playboy whose wife lays him open not only to her alimony scheme but the machinations of the gold digging manufacturers. Hobart Cavanaugh and T. Roy Barnes are consistently funny as the clownish small time aldermen who are to meet their wives in Paris, but try to be playboys on the way. Others in the cast include Robert Armstrong, Osgood Perkins, Gordon Westcott, Vince Barnett, Ivan Lebedeff and Arthur Hoyt.

"Lives of Bengal Lancer"
 The soldiers of the king, not as Kipling sang of them but as Francis Yve Brown described in his remarkable book, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" are the heroes of the stirring, remarkable and colourful picture of warfare and heroism in India which will be shown simultaneously at the Central and Alhambra Theatres during the Easter holidays. Produced by Paramount, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" features Gary Cooper, Francis T. Kane, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing in the leading roles. It is a picture replete with the sounds and sights of the mysterious east, as authentic as the Himalayas themselves and equally thrilling. And, although it has more to offer in the pictorial sense than any recent Hollywood offer, ing, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is a particularly remarkable for it is a dramatic story of four great soldiers. Cooper and Tane contribute the outstanding portrayals of courage and romantic campaigners to "The Lives of the Bengal Lancer" and the entire cast including Monte Blue, C. Aubrey Smith, Douglas Dumbrille, Kathleen Burke and Akim Tamiroff in the supporting roles, render sterling performances.

"6-Day Bike Rider"

No male star on the screen to-day is more widely mimicked by the kids than Joe E. Brown, now appearing in his latest Warner Bros. comedy, "6-Day Bike Rider," showing to-day at the Alhambra Theatre. Although exploitation has capitalised on its width, the comedian's mouth is really but the slightly larger than that of the average human being. The tunnel effect results from his practised use of his mobile lips. The kids won't believe this, however, and the height of their joy is to be told that they have a big mouth like Joe E. Brown. "6-Day Bike Rider" is a hilarious comedy of thrills and spills on a racing track. Supporting Joe E. are Maxine Doyle, Frank McHugh, Gordon Westcott, Arthur Aylesworth and Lottie Williams. Lloyd Bacon directed the picture from the story and screen play by Earl Baldwin.

COMPANY MEETING

BERNARDS OF HARWICH HAVE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

At a meeting held in their Kowloon offices, Bernards of Harwich decided to give a dividend of eight per cent on all Gift Shares issued in 1934.

In reviewing the trading for the past year, Mr. S. Firth Bernard remarked that it gave him considerable satisfaction to find that the issue of gift shares had been such a successful feature. 1934 had been quite a successful year, and the policy maintained by the firm in regard to its service and prices had resulted in a substantial increase in turnover.

The taking over of the new premises in Des Voeux Road and removal of the business from Chater Road in July last had been a very clear advantage, although the present premises were still inadequate but it was hoped that in the not too distant future this difficulty would be overcome.

The number of accounts opened for customers had more than doubled during the past year, and the pleasant relationship existing between their customers and the firm was very gratifying.

Mr. S. Firth Bernard referred to the seven shops recently built by the firm in England, and interesting references were made in regard to the visits made to various parts of the world by representatives. Their workrooms devoted to the making of naval uniforms were being kept very busy in making thousands of uniforms under contract for the Admiralty, and the separate workrooms in use for high grade lounge suits and overcoats etc. were also being kept very busy with special orders for overseas branches.

Referring to Hongkong, he suggested that Bernards of Harwich could anticipate a further successful year in 1935-36, and he would take the opportunity of congratulating Mr. F. Lawrence and Mr. M. Crickley on their management of the business during his recent absence from Hongkong, and he would extend his thanks to all members of the staff for their loyal co-operation.

Art lovers will be interested to learn that Mr. Louis Chan, the local amateur artist, is to hold an exhibition of his paintings, drawings and sculpture in the lounge of the Gloucester Hotel on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 15, 16 and 17. There will be 155 entries, in which oil paintings, watercolours and pastels will be predominant. At 11 o'clock on Monday, Lady Shenton will formally open the exhibition, and it is requested that those who have received invitation cards will kindly attend at that time.

BRITAIN SHOULD BE STRONG

AIR MENACE TO CIVILIANS

SOME FINE TARGETS

By RICHARD FINDLAY
(Former R.A.F. War Pilot)

If war were to break out again the conditions of warfare would be found to be greatly changed. During the Great War bombing aircraft were only just beginning to find their true sphere. In the Royal Air Force only nine bombing squadrons were detached as a separate force for attacks upon civilian centres, while on the German side the attacks upon England were made by a relatively small number of aircraft. But, if this country is again embroiled in a Continental dispute with another nation within attacking distance of our shores, bombing aircraft will be found to have the striking power of long-range heavy guns.

Raiding aircraft would in the first instance be directed against certain definite objectives, the destruction of which would have for its aim the curtailment of our military power. Attacks would be launched against important munition centres, centres of aircraft and aero-engine production, aerodromes, fuel depots, harbours, railway junctions, and other vital points.

What this work had been accomplished the terrorisation of the civil population would begin. Norwood, in common with the rest of London and other large towns throughout the country, would become the target for terrific bombardment from the air.

LAND MARK

To the pilot who has flown over London there is no greater or more conspicuous landmark than the Crystal Palace. It can be seen in clear weather from very great distances, and in bad weather, before wireless communication with the ground was properly established, it served as a guiding mark to the pilots flying on the air traffic routes converging on Croydon. It is of great value as a landmark in times of peace; its possibilities as a guide in times of war are too awful to contemplate.

Unfortunately for the people of Norwood it stands as a beacon on the fringe of their district, and aeroplanes approaching through the smoky mists that frequently enshroud London would certainly seize upon it as a pointer. There can be little doubt that such a landmark would attract the raiding bomber.

There would be no point in launching an attack upon that building. Its demolition by high explosive bombs would destroy a landmark of too great a value. Only the neighbourhood would suffer by its proximity to the Crystal Palace, and Norwood might well become one of the most severely bombed of all the districts which comprise the county of London, when the weather conditions were at their worst.

GAS BOMBS

Gas bombs would be dropped to disable and demoralise the civil population; incendiary bombs would cause more fires than the combined efforts of all our fire brigades could hope to deal with; while high-explosive bombs would hamper their efforts to prevent the wholesale destruction which would result. Low-flying aeroplanes would attack with machine guns the crowds driven from the burning buildings.

We are a pacific people; we have everything to lose and nothing to gain by war. But it is precisely

CHICKEN AND TONGUE

SANDWICHES

At this season of the year cold remains of tongue and fowl crop up, not sufficient for another meal, but too much to throw out.

The smallest scraps will make delicious sandwiches. If minced very finely, pounded with a little mayonnaise, and spread thickly on thin slices of bread and butter.

Arrange on a pretty dish, garnish with sprigs of bright green parsley, and they will be thankfully received at tea-time by your family.

because we desire peace so earnestly that we should take active steps to ensure its continuance. We must, therefore, establish without delay the largest and best-equipped Air Force in the world, the existence of which will be the best guarantee that War shall not again break loose upon the world. This Air Force would not only make attack upon our shores so doubtful of success as to be unlikely, but would also constitute such a power of retaliation that no nation would dare to risk its effect.

FUEL SUPPLY

The question of fuel supplies is one which concerns the Air Force very closely, since we depend for these upon imports. It is essential that the routes along which the oil tankers come should be adequately defended. But even more important is the development of the new processes for deriving oil from coal, so that in the last resort we should have sufficient fuel supplies within our own borders.

But we must take other steps as well for our security. We should begin to instruct the civil population in the use of gas masks; we should begin to erect bomb shelters to which they could retire in the event of an attack from the air. We should realise that it is only by discipline that we can ensure that panic would not be added to all the other horrors of aerial warfare should peace be menaced by military aggression. Britain's weakness is one of the principal causes of the unrest and uncertainty in Europe to-day. Let Britain be strong, and Europe will be tranquil.

AUTOGIRO FOR NAVY

CRADLE INVENTION FOR TAKE-OFF

VERTICAL FLIGHTS

The Navy is to have its first autogiro in less than two months' time, says the Morning Post Naval Correspondent. The machine will, I understand, be attached to the aircraft carrier Courageous. Several officers of the Fleet Air Arm have already visited Old Sarum Aerodrome to gain experience in the handling of autogiros.

The autogiro will be used for carrying out a number of trials to determine the exact use of such machines in the Fleet Air Arm.

The fact that the Admiralty are now to have an autogiro for experimental purposes is of particular interest in view of the announcement last week of Senor de la Cierva, the inventor, to the Aeronautical Society that the problem of vertical flight had been overcome.

Vertical flight will be of the greatest advantage for autogiros working from ships not having flight decks or landing platforms. It will also make far more practicable an invention for which a provisional patent has already been taken out. This consists of a cradle which can be hoisted over the side of a ship on a derrick, and which can be used for the taking off and landing of an autogiro without an undercarriage.

An autogiro which can take off or land without any undercarriage is of the greatest importance from the naval point of view, for dispensing with the undercarriage will save weight which can then be added to the equipment or fuel storage of the autogiro.

DISADVANTAGES

From the naval point of view, existing autogiros suffer from several inherent disadvantages. The most important of these is their low carrying capacity. Not only does this discount much of their use as reconnaissance machines, but it dictates a small radius of action.

The autogiros in existence today have a carrying capacity of only about one-quarter of the reconnaissance load of the latest machines in the Fleet Air Arm. This reconnaissance load is made up partly of flotation gear, but chiefly of wireless telegraphy and telephony instruments and navigational instruments of great accuracy.

On the other hand, attempts have not yet been made to effect a large increase in the carrying capacity of the autogiro, and it is probable that the results of trials made by the Fleet Air Arm may encourage designers and manufacturers to produce autogiros capable of fulfilling the peculiar needs of the Fleet Air Arm.

Another disadvantage of existing autogiros for Fleet work is their low speed and endurance. At sea one may frequently require air reconnaissance ahead when steaming at high speed into a strong wind or gale. Under such conditions the autogiro of to-day would be unable to effect a reconnaissance ahead of the Fleet of any reasonable depth.

It is alleged, also, that the autogiro is peculiarly vulnerable to anti-aircraft gunfire and to air attack. It is certain that these problems will be thoroughly investigated as soon as the Fleet Air Arm receives its autogiro.

HOME GARDENING: II

HOW TO TRANSFER SEEDLINGS FROM FLATS

BY PROF. C. H. NISSLEY.

A loose, friable soil that will not bake in a good medium in which to grow "transplants." A mixture of one-third manure, one-third garden soil, and one-third sand is recommended.

Have the soil into which the young plants are transplanted slightly richer in plant food than the soil in which they were started as seedlings. Bone meal, added at the rate of a 5-inch flower pot full to a medium-sized wheelbarrow of the prepared soil, will add the proper amount of plant food.

Set the transplants so that the crotch of the seed leaves is just above the ground. The roots are placed into holes, which are made either by the finger or by the use of "dibbles."

Press the ground around the roots thoroughly so that there will be no possibility of an air space surrounding them. Have the soil quite moist, since it is essential that the roots obtain an adequate water supply.

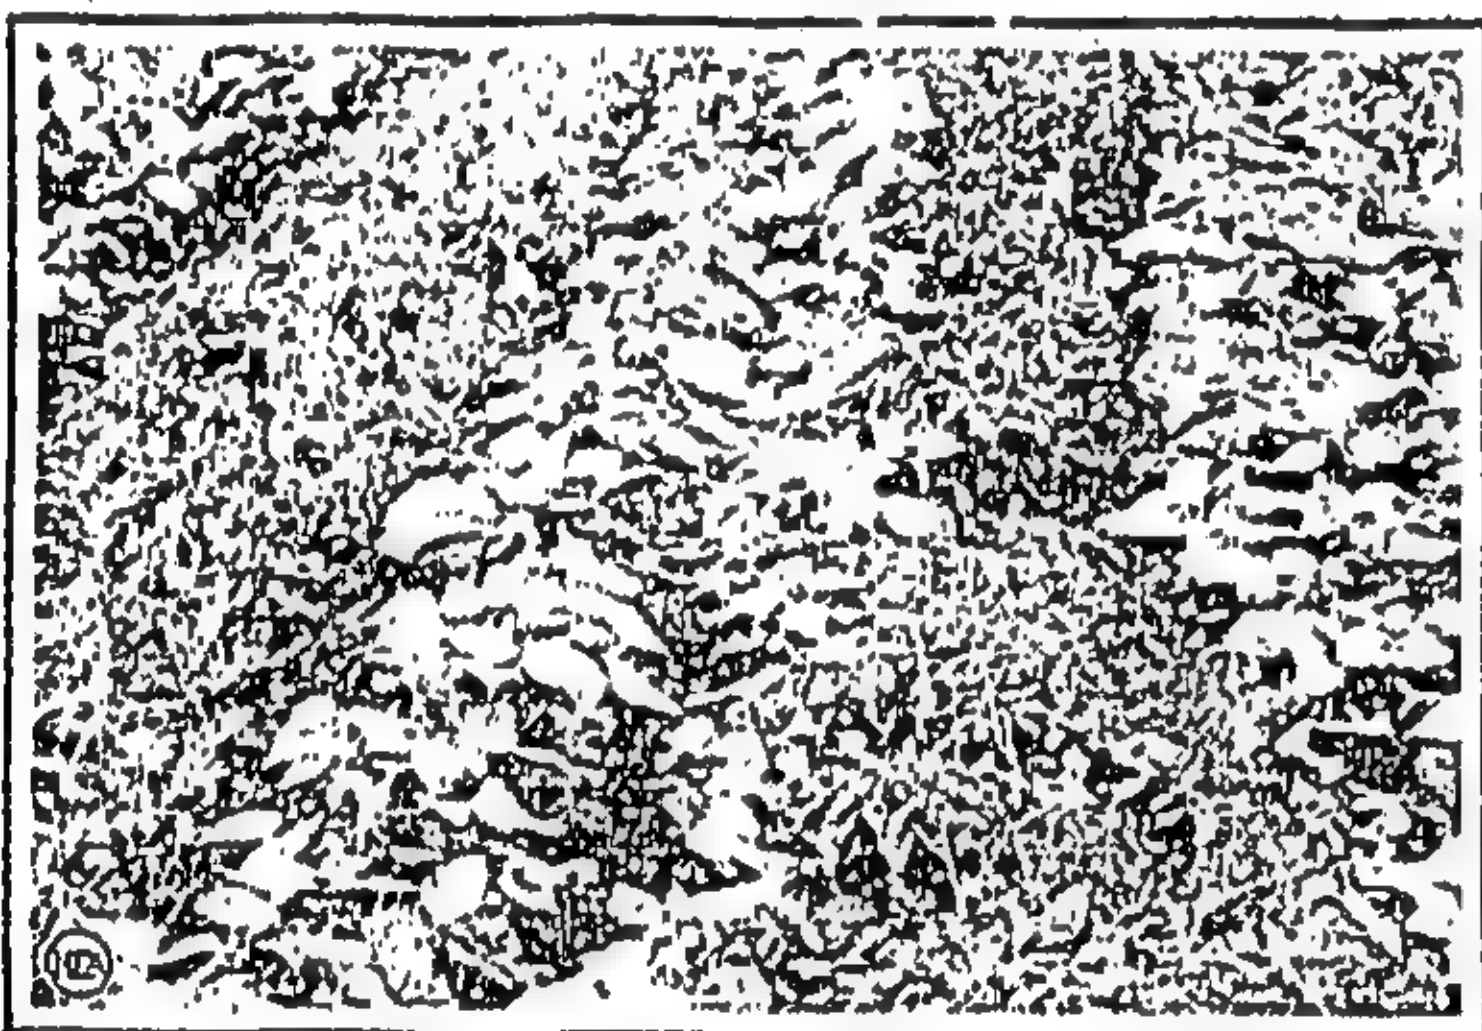

Water the plants immediately after transplanting, and shade them for at least 24 to 36 hours, especially if the day is warm. If the plants are set in an outdoor cold frame, put the sash in place and place salt hay, burlap, canvas or some other kind of a covering over the glass.

A cold frame will be found of great assistance in cultivating hardy vegetable plants. It offers protection from cold weather, starts plants quicker, and results in an earlier plant. It also offers a place in which to acclimatise early plants grown under controlled heat conditions to outdoor environment preparatory to garden transplanting. It may be constructed at very little cost, using one and a quarter-inch by 12-inch cypress, spruce or rough hemlock boards from 14 to 16 feet long, placed parallel to each other, 6 feet apart.

They should run east and west with a slant of from 4 to 6 inches toward the south. This will permit more sunlight to enter the frame and will provide a means of carrying off excess rain water.

The cold frame should be protected against extreme cold either through electric heating or through the use of burlap or canvas covers, which should be properly anchored.

Here is a well laid-out vegetable garden illustrating the practice of "companion cropping." String beans have been planted between rows of tomatoes.

The string beans mature in 50 to 60 days and will be harvested by the time the tomato plants need the extra room. The bean vines will then be turned under, and the tomatoes will thus be aided by the provision of more organic matter in the soil.

Many combinations of early and late crops may be profitably subjected to this system of "companion cropping."

Next Tuesday: Vegetable varieties.

ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE

LONDON TO NEW YORK IN 24 HOURS

NEWFOUNDLAND TO GALWAY

London, Mar. 20. The prospect of a regular passenger and mail air service across the Atlantic has at last been brought within sight of realisation by negotiations which have been conducted during the last few months between interested parties and the Governments in London, Dublin, Newfoundland, and the United States. These negotiations have reached a stage when the possibility of a regular Transatlantic service between Galway Bay, Ireland, and Newfoundland in seven and a half hours may be a reality within the next year.

For economic and other reasons, it is claimed that the successful working of a regular Transatlantic schedule must depend on the use of the shortest and most direct route between the Old World and the New; and the scheme will provide for the building of a new aerodrome at Galway Bay. From there it is a "hop" of 1,600 miles to the nearest point upon the other side of the Atlantic—Notre Dame Bay, Newfoundland. A site for this aerodrome has already been selected at Furbough by Sir Alan Cobham, air consultant to the Irish Transatlantic Corporation, a company controlled by trustees approved by the Irish Free State Government, whose chairman, Mr. C. H. Clendinning, has throughout been the prime mover in the negotiations.

AMERICAN SEAPLANES

American seaplanes are to operate over the route. These machines are capable of a cruising speed of 175 m.p.h., and it has been calculated—partly from official flying times between London and Galway,

Halifax and New York, supplied by the Air Ministry—that on a conservative basis, and making due allowance for delays, the air journey from London to New York can be completed within 24 hours. The scheme in its original form provided for a combined sea and air service, with Galway and Halifax as terminal points. As the result, however, of a meeting at the American Embassy last November between Mr. Stebbins, the United States Trade Commissioner, and Mr. Clendinning, the scheme was altered to a direct air service between Galway and Newfoundland. The change of plan was discussed with Captain McClennaghan, the Chief of the Air Department of the Irish Free State Government, who expressed the opinion that there would be no official objection to the alteration, and pointed out that his Department was aware of the importance of the Galway Newfoundland route. Upon the advice of the Civil Department of the Air Ministry, the scheme was placed directly before the Newfoundland Government, and on January 22 Mr. Clendinning was informed by the Trade Commissioner, Mr. Davis, that the proposal would have the goodwill of his Government.

FOG-FREE SITES

The next stage in the elaborate negotiations was an interview on January 30, at the American Embassy, when Mr. Clendinning and Mr. Maxwell Ayrton were received by the Air Attache, Captain Monahan. He informed them that the Sikorsky seaplane could put up a cruising speed of 175 miles an hour, and had accommodation for 52 passengers. Providing that suitable arrangements could be made at the terminal points, there seemed to be no reason, he declared, why the service should not be successfully operated.

Further conversations took place with the Civil Department of the Air Ministry, and at an important conference held at the offices in London of the Newfoundland Government, the question of finding a fog-free site in Newfoundland was fully discussed. As a result, Mr. Davis, the Trade Commissioner, or, supplied a map marked with the areas approved by his Government as follows:—Notre Dame Bay—Fog-free twelve months in the year, and ice-free nine months; Mortimer Bay—Ice-free twelve months in the year, and fog-free during the period that Notre Dame Bay is frozen.

It is intended that the new aerodrome at Furbough should be the focal point for existing services to and from all parts of Europe, passengers and mail being conveyed to the seaplane base for the Transatlantic flight. Alternatively, passengers and mail will be picked up after the ocean flight for transport to Britain and the Continent. The same service will be available at Notre Dame Bay.

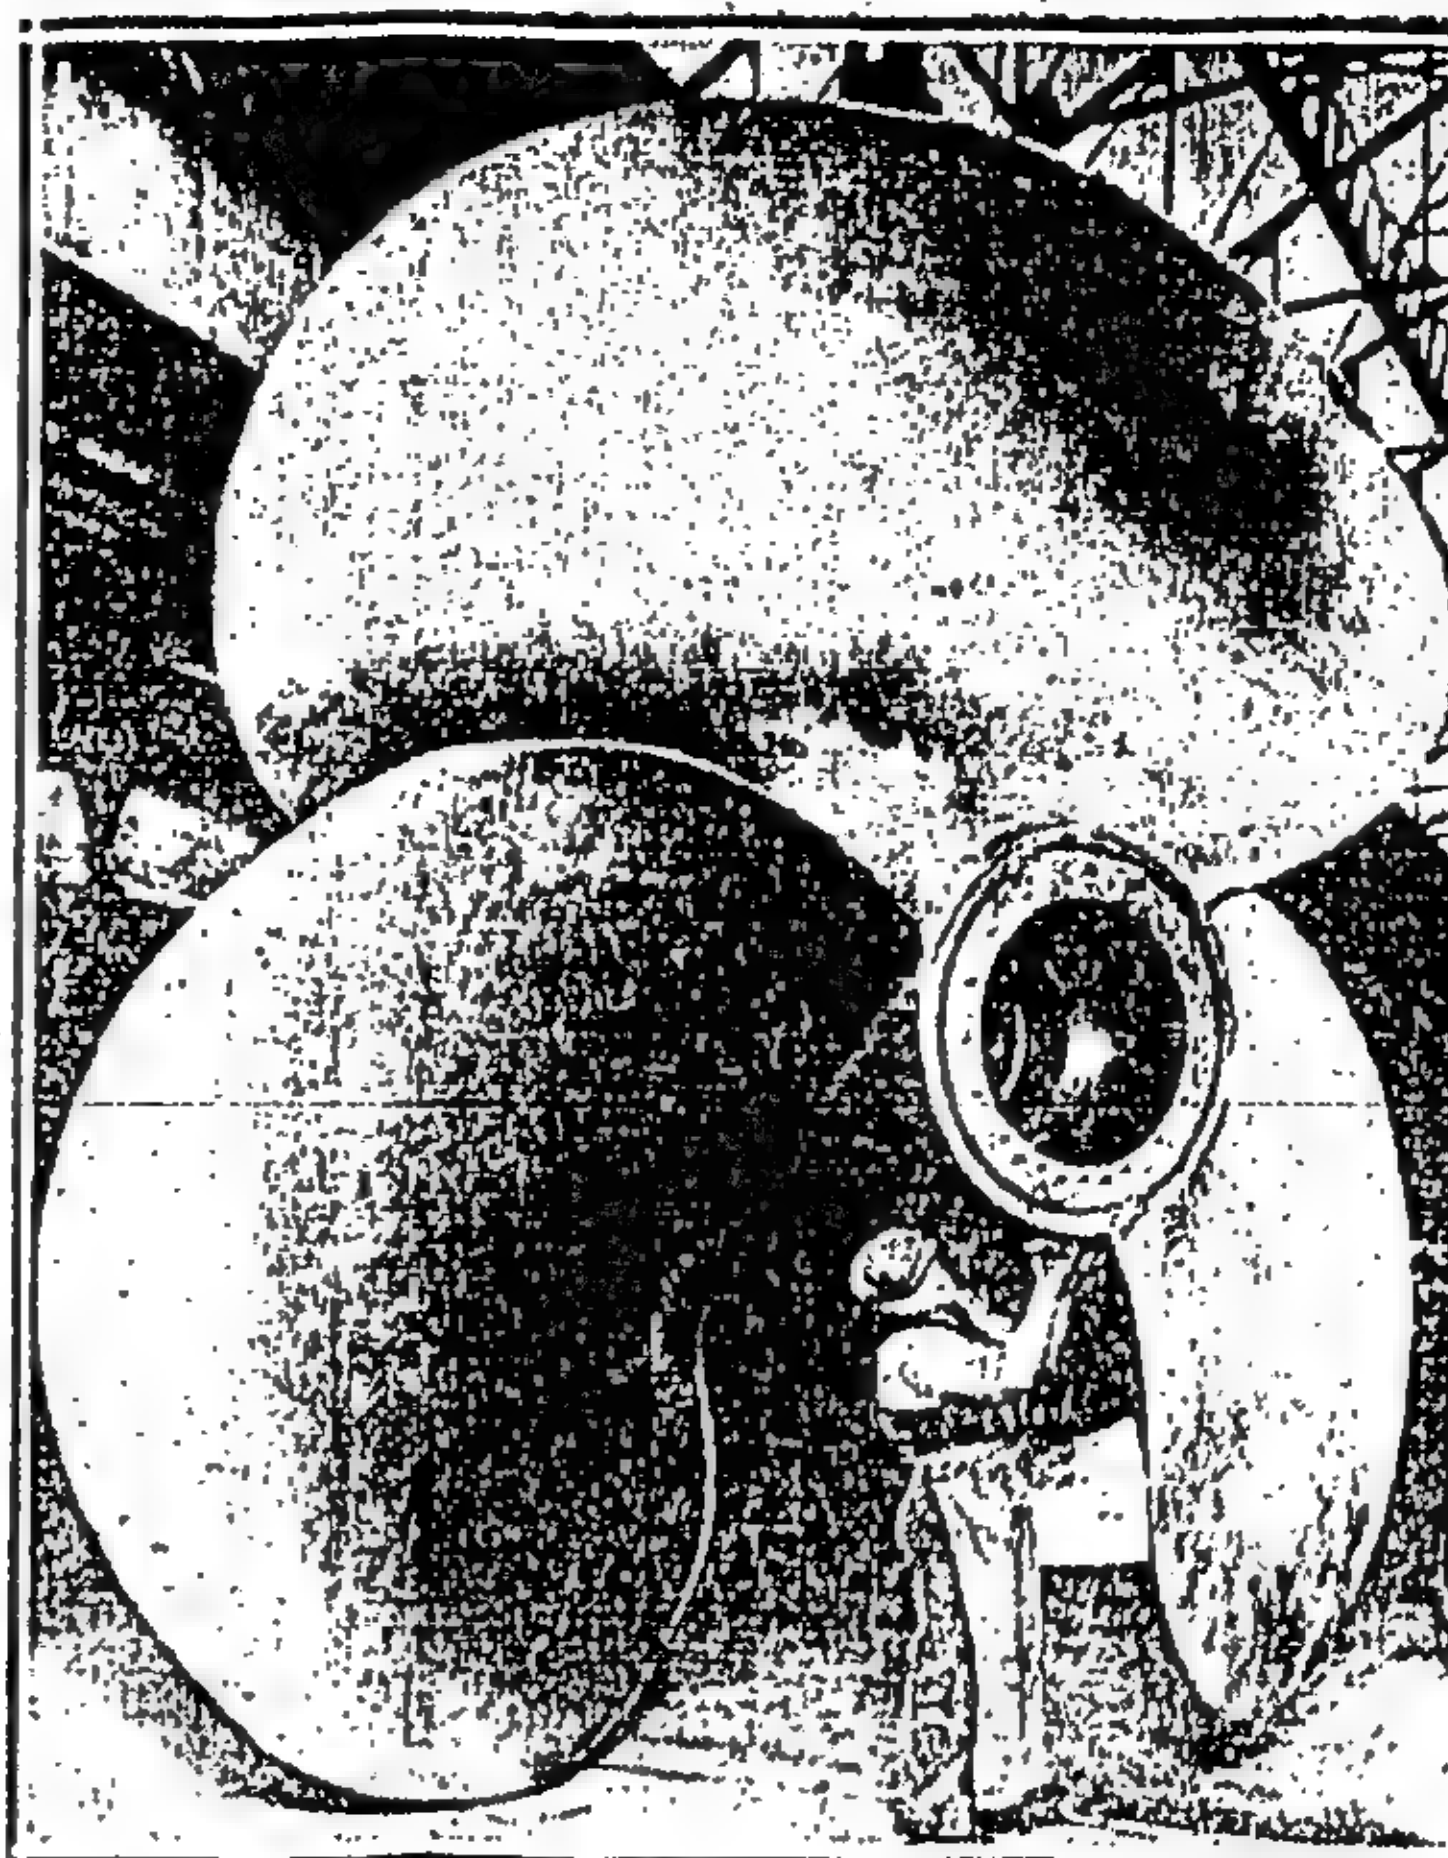

NO SHORTER ROUTE

Mr. Clendinning, in an interview said that the various Government experts who had been investigating the potentialities of the scheme had been impressed by the close juxtaposition of an excellent aerodrome site—chosen by an airman of international reputation—a natural seaplane base, and, within a mile, sufficient depth of water to allow the largest Transatlantic liner to berth at any state of the tide.

"The experts," he added, "have agreed with Captain McClennaghan's view of the economic importance of flying the Atlantic by the shortest and quickest route, and there is no shorter route between the Old World and the New than that between Galway Bay and Notre Dame Bay."

Mr. Clendinning is leaving shortly for New York, to discuss the schemes with American bankers interested in the project. The American Embassy in London is making the necessary arrangements for Mr. Clendinning to meet the chief of the Civil Air Department at Washington, and to visit the principal air operating and manufacturing companies under their auspices.

The original scheme was brought to the favourable notice of the U.S.A. Government by Mr. Sterling, formerly American Minister to the Irish Free State.

The liner Normandie, French challenge for shipping supremacy, is nearly ready for trials that will show whether it is the fastest as well as the biggest thing afloat. Four 15-foot propellers that will drive the 75,000-ton vessel across the Atlantic on its maiden voyage late in the Spring are ready to be attached. A workman is shown polishing the 23-ton screw, which was cast in England.

SCOTLAND YARD

HOW IT IS "MUCKIN' UP CRIME"

"Your Blinkin' squadrons are fair muckin' up crime." This testimony by an "old lag" to the efficiency of the police wireless organisation was cited in Air Marshal Lord Trenchard's report on the Metropolitan Police for 1934.

Wireless patrol cars resulted in 821 arrests being made during the second half of last year, the thieves often being caught in actual possession of the stolen car within a few minutes of the theft.

Lord Trenchard pays tribute to the increasing crime fighting efficacy of the police, but stresses the difficulties due to the growth of London and of the numbers of a motor-cars, Districts which were only fields in 1933 are now miles of houses ill-protected, and affording excellent opportunities for thieves.

Lord Trenchard emphasised the need for a wholesale enlargement of Scotland Yard, or the removal elsewhere. Every branch of police work had become immensely more complicated in the past forty years with its own group of experts and specialists. He complained that overcrowding hopelessly impeded administration. Many work in corridors by artificial light, and the criminal records continually needed piled up passages and floor to the ceilings.

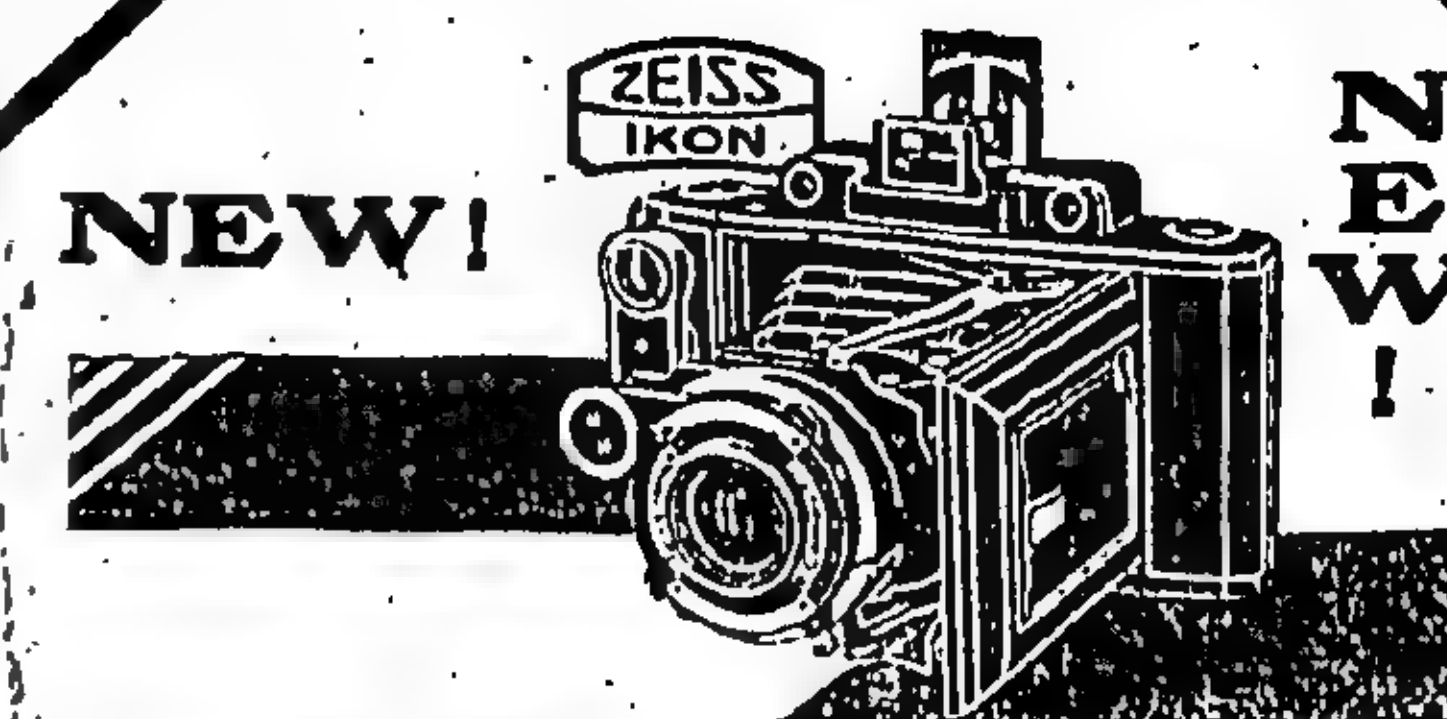

Senior officers often engaged in a most confidential conversation were crowded three or four together in tiny rooms. The fingerprint staff was jammed together like warehouse clerks in a Christmas rush.—Reuter.

With a state of war declared against rebels in all parts of Cuba, scenes like this became common in Havana, where President Carlos Mendieta took steps to maintain his government despite the general strike aimed at his overthrow.

Algeria, in the Mecca of tourists, thanks to the people's picturesque manners. Especially the annual horse races, from which the above picture is taken, attract attention among the interested public owing to the riders' marvellous skill.

EXCHANGEMARKET IRREGULAR
YESTERDAY

New York, Apr. 10.
The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Stocks were irregularly moved, featured by the strength of silver issues, due to Secretary Henry Morgenthau's statement. The announcement caused traders to purchase silver shares, due to the certainty that the price of the metal will soon pass the 64 1/2 cent level. Towards the close, however, silver stocks declined from the day's high level. Rails were aided by President Sargent's statement who said that the Chicago North-Western Railroad Company, at the worst, may postpone May and July interest payments only through the three months' grace period. Bonds were irregular.

Stocks on the Curb Exchange were irregular.
S. C. & F. New York office cables: Average daily petroleum production for the week ended April 6 was 2,536,000 barrels, compared with 2,563,000 barrels the previous week. Weekly electricity production totalled 1,700,000,000 k.w.h., an increase of 5.2 per cent as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

New York & Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:—
Cotton: News regarding the Process Tax was the main feature of a quiet market.

Wheat: Italy was a heavy buyer of French wheat. The Government estimate the Winter wheat crop at 435,000,000 bushels, which is constructed as bullish. Wheat on farms is estimated at 43,000,000 bushels, last year.

Corn: There was some heavy profit-taking, which was absorbed by new buying. Advice from Chicago indicate a cautious trend and there are renewed talk of imports.

Rubber: Late in the session the undertone was better. The Trade was the principal buyer. Foreign offerings were well taken, but the market was not broad. Estimates of April consumption total 41,000 tons.

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE

Anxious as she has shown herself to be to meet any reasonable demands put forward by Germany, it would seem from Mr. Baldwin's latest speech that Britain is almost beginning to lose patience with Hitler's attitude on the European situation. It is clear, also, reading between the lines of Sir John Simon's utterance in Parliament, that the British Government is disappointed over the outcome of the recent Anglo-German talks in Berlin. Whilst there is no desire on the part of the war-time Allies to keep Germany in subjection, the point cannot be completely ignored that she was the loser in the Great War. But there is nothing in the present-day outlook of the Berlin Government which would suggest that that was the case; indeed, it is not too much to say that Germany appears at the moment to be adopting a role of dictating to the rest of Europe. This may be a hard saying, but it is difficult to resist the conclusion. She has bluntly disregarded the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty, both in regard to the strength of her Army and the creation of an Air Force, and, not stopping at this, is now infringing its provisions in the matter of naval construction. The development is all the more regrettable when it is borne in mind that the former Allies have for long been disposed to modify the Peace Treaty stipulations in Germany's favour. It is difficult, also, to comprehend Germany's attitude on the question of a collective peace system, implying mutual assistance, particularly her disinclination to enter into any such pact with Russia. Equally unfortunate is her desire to exclude Lithuania from any non-aggression pacts which may be devised. If there is one point more than another

NOTES OF THE DAY GUARDING INVESTORS

We published an interview with a well-informed Hongkong financial man yesterday in which he warned Hongkong share-holders against lending their scrip to operators who would use it in "bear raids" upon the local market. He pointed out that by so doing share-holders were supplying their worst enemies with ammunition; for with the scrip in their possession operators are able to tear down prices to levels which will enable them to buy back again at a profit, return the scrip, or shares of an equal amount to those originally borrowed, and collect their cash security. By this means an artificial depression could be encouraged, to the detriment of thousands of investors. We do not deny the honesty or value of "bear" trading, but we do most strenuously object to such practices as these. Bear traders unquestionably serve a useful purpose, but when the operation results in a loss of millions of dollars to investors in sound stocks, the usefulness becomes an offence. It is absurd that an investment which pays a steady seven and eight per cent. should have been pounded down below the par value of the shares; and that situation exists in Hongkong. That an exposure of what has been going on in Ice House Street should have been made by a man well acquainted with conditions there we are convinced every good citizen will applaud, as we do.

SPY SCARES

The development of the case against the steamer Juno, held by the Japanese authorities on suspicion that she was engaged in some sort of espionage in Japan's "fortified zone," will be watched with much interest everywhere. The Juno was under charter to a British concern by her Dutch owners and was operating in Far East waters when she was overtaken by a typhoon. She ran for the nearest shelter, according to the despatch from Tokyo, which happened to be in a bay of the Peandores Islands, and because this shelter happened to be within that jealously guarded "fortified zone," she was immediately suspected of engaging in espionage and escorted, by a destroyer, to a place where the case will be investigated. What possible secrets she may have discovered, what highly valuable information may have been obtained while the typhoon raged along the coast, we are not prepared to guess. But it would seem likely that the attention of the master and the crew of this oil tanker was engaged for the greater part of the time in the perils which beset the ship. We are not suggesting that Japan has no right to restrict the passages of foreign shipping in areas where secret fortifications may exist; there is no good reason to dispute such regulations as are conceived to safeguard the secrets of Japan's defence works. But it does seem a trifle unjust that a master must imperil his ship and the lives of those aboard simply to avoid entering a shelter in the neighbourhood of shore batteries or an anti-aircraft observation post. It would seem that a broad view might be taken of such an instance as this last, particularly if, in the confusion of the storm, the Juno's master was forced to choose, almost literally, between the devil and the deep, deep sea.

which emerges from the present unsettled condition of Europe; it is that peace can best be served by means of a general system of collective security. Yet Germany flatly declines to come into any such scheme, thereby helping to perpetuate old rivalries and hostilities and forcing other nations into the bad old system of military alliances. The proposed Franco-Russian convention is an outgrowth of these developments. German disinclination to join hands with other nations in an effort to place European peace on a firm basis has naturally given rise to doubts as to her sincerity and her future intentions. These doubts can best be dispelled by Hitler and his colleagues implementing their pacific declarations by demonstrating a willingness to enter a general European understanding. In the absence of any such indication, Germany will only have herself to blame if her professions are taken with the proverbial grain of salt.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

George, nautical boy Prince:

Always it was the sea with the two sons of Edward and Alexandra; even before they were old enough to become cadets they showed an aptitude and a desire to become sailors.

The pictures above, for instance, show Prince George (right) as a lad of six attired in sailor's uniform. Note the twinkling look of mischief in his eye. He looks as though he would dearly love to play some prank on the photographer.

When Prince George was twelve, he and his brother, Prince Albert Victor, then heir to the throne, became naval cadets on the Britannia at Spithead. There they were accorded the same treatment as the other cadets.

Prince George loved it—perhaps even more than Prince Albert Victor. In the veins of the future king flowed the blood of Viking ancestors, for his mother, Queen Alexandra, was from Denmark, land of the Vikings.

During the two years on the Britannia Prince George won for himself the reputation for high spirits, ready wit and tremendous activity.

But his excess vigor was always held in check by the staid sobriety of his brother. Different in temperament, the two brothers nevertheless maintained a deep attraction for each other all during the short life of Prince Albert Victor.

The photograph at left, above, shows Prince George at the age of 15 as a young midshipman aboard the Bacchante, to which ship he was transferred after his apprenticeship aboard the Britannia. The brothers left on a long voyage on the Bacchante in 1879 (visiting Hongkong in the course of their cruise) and lived as all sailors live for three years on a cruise of more than 56,000 miles. It had a remarkable effect on the later life of Prince George, one day to be known as the "Sailor King."

A member of the ship's crew, describing the life on board the Bacchante, says: "I have seen King George mixed up in a heap of marines, stokers, and blue jackets, who had stumbled over each other in the gangway, enjoying it just as much as those who were down with them and pulling himself free with all his might."

Admiral Sir Charles Scott was the captain of the Bacchante throughout the cruise, and the first officer was Admiral Sir Assheton Curzon Howe. To the latter it is said the Princes owed a great deal of the seaman's knowledge they gained at this time.

Parliament's Record

CONSTITUTION OF BURMA DEBATED

London, April 10.
What must amount to a Parliamentary record occurred at today's session when the whole of the Constitution of Burma was disposed of in one evening, during the Committee Stage of the India Bill.

The Burma section of the Bill consisted of 162 clauses but proceedings were accelerated by the fact that most of the questions involved have already been settled during debates on the India Section of the Bill.—Reuter.

London, April 10.
When consideration of the transitional provisions of the Government of India Bill was completed to-day, 297 clauses had been dealt with.

The next part of the Bill, Paragraph 14, deals with Burma, and in accordance with the provision given earlier, with the general assent of the Committee, there was a debate on the question of separation of Burma to-day.

A motion for the omission of Paragraph 14, on the ground that the same progress towards self-government had not been made in Burma as in India, was listed by the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, who said the Statutory Commission came very definitely to the view that the great weight of opinion in Burma was in favour of separation. The result of the Round Table Conference confirmed that view, as did the Joint Select Committee. His inquiries convinced him that strong feeling in Burma still desired separation.

INTERIM PERIOD
The Government, however, insisted that every possible step be taken to avoid sudden dislocation of the economic bond that had grown up between India and Burma. Accordingly, the Joint Select Committee recommended that there should be an interim period before the new Governments became separated, and, as a result of discussions between the two Governments, the view was reached that the status for five years should be maintained, during which trade relations between India and Burma would continue as at present.

He invited the views of members as to the length of the interim period. He thought it would be wise to leave the two Governments to make the best arrangements they could for Burma and India, provided British trade did not suffer from the position. When the interim period ended, the British Government would be free to make whatever arrangements it could with the Government of Burma, where there ought to be wide opportunities for British trade.—British Wireless.

BIG ARRAY OF COUNSEL

THREE FIRMS OR ONE?

Three barristers and three solicitors appeared in connection with a claim for $234.95 in the Summary Court before Mr. Justice R. E. Lindell, Puisne Judge, this morning.

The action was brought by Lee Yan Wo, of 278, Hennessy Road, against the well-known Government contractors, Sang Lee & Co., of 2 and 8, Tin Lok Lane and is in the nature of a test case.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., was instructed by Mr. J. T. Prior, of Messrs. Wilkinson & Grist, whilst Mr. D. McNeill was instructed by Mr. David L. Strellett, of Geo. K. Hall Brutton & Co., for the head office of Sang Lee & Co., of 2, Tin Lok Lane.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., instructed by Mr. H. L. Denny, of Denny & Co., said he had not previously entered the record of the case, but did so now because a summons had been served on Branch A at 8, Tin Lok Lane for whom he appeared.

For the defendants it was stated that their case was that they were different partnerships and business altogether.

Mr. Sheldon said that the goods for which they were suing were delivered with one small exception to Sang Lee at an address at 138, Thompson Road. When this last named branch closed, the plaintiffs naturally looked to the head office for payment, on the ground that they were the same firm or that they had held themselves out to be the same firm or had knowingly allowed the Thompson Road firm to hold themselves out to be the same firm.

Counsel produced different chops of each of the three concerns mentioned with one used by Sang Lee on a number of Government contracts, and others used by the Thompson Road firm for correspondence and goods delivered.

Mr. R. C. B. Clarke, of the F.W.D., identified the chops used on nine documents in connection with Government Civil Hospital site.

Mr. Potter: Mr. Lam of Thompson Road went "bust" and Mr. Yu of the "A" Branch asked if he could complete the G.C.H. contract?

Witness: Yes.

He told the Government that one of the reasons was that Lam Ming owed him money?—I do not know that.

The position shortly is that Yu Yeuk-kwai was given permission to finish the contract and he actually worked under the Sang Lee chop and signed Yu Yeuk-kwai underneath? When he introduced himself to you he explained to you that there were three separate firms?—I cannot remember that.

After considerable questioning, witness agreed that Mr. Yu had mentioned two separate concerns, but he thought he meant two distinct branches.

Mr. Potter suggested that if they actually were branches, and

DOG WITHOUT MUZZLE

LOCAL SOLICITOR FINED

Mr. F. H. Loseby, of 3 Chatham Road, was fined $5 by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, on a summons for allowing his dog abroad in Chatham Road without a muzzle and unleashed on March 13.

Appearing on behalf of the defendant, Mr. C. E. R. Sanderson tendered apologies to the Bench for Mr. Loseby's absence, and explained that he pleaded guilty to the summons. He would only add that Mr. Loseby was still puzzled as to how the dog managed to get out. He himself never saw it outside and therefore must accept the evidence of the constable. Mr. Loseby had kept dogs for many years and had never had a previous complaint from the police, or anybody else. The dogs were inoculated against rabies.

SMART NAVAL WEDDING

LIEUT. DYER AND MISS TUXFORD

A prominent wedding of much social interest with local naval circles was celebrated this afternoon at St. John's Cathedral when Miss Elfreda Annie Tuxford became the bride of Lieut. Richard Dyer, R.N.

The Rev. R. Royle, of H.M.S. Medway, and the Rev. H. W. Balnes, officiated at the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Tuxford, M. Inst. C.E., and Mrs. Tuxford, who arrived here from Shanghai last week on the a.s. Cathay. Mr. Tuxford is Engineer-in-Chief of the Nanking-Shanghai and Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railways.

Lieut. Dyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Dyer of Chelwood, Sussex, England.

The bride, who entered the Cathedral on the arm of her father, looked charming in a white French satin wedding gown cut on long graceful lines, set off with a beautiful two-and-a-half yard train and headpiece of pearl leaves and orange blossom. The bridal gown was made by Madam Komorsky. Easter lilies were carried.

The train bearers were Jennifer Telle, dressed in white velvet with a gold Juliet cap, and John Hole in long white trousers and a white satin blouse.

The only bridesmaid, Miss Joyce Harris, Walker, wore blue organdie, a large blue picture hat to match (from Naomi Joseph's gown) and long white gloves. She carried a bouquet of African daisies.

The bride's mother wore a gown of green lace with picture hat of green ermine to match and beige gloves and shoes.

Lieut. P. L. Field, R.N., was best man.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the Gloucester Buildings.

On leaving for the honeymoon, which is being spent at Cheung Chai, Mrs. Dyer wore navy blue and white with coat to match, also from Naomi Joseph's Salon. Hat and shoes of navy blue and white gloves and bag completed the ensemble.

AMERICA RAISES SILVER PRICE

then those mining silver would get more for it.

Shortly after Mr. Morgenthau's announcement, New York bar silver was reported to have been sold at 64.75 cents an ounce, but inquiries in trade circles failed to reveal any details regarding this report. The opinion was expressed that if such a transaction had occurred, it was probably a small amount.

SILVERITES GRATIFIED

Silver took the spotlight in the financial markets to-day, when the price of bar silver rose from 63 to 64 1/2 cents an ounce, which was followed by an announcement by Mr. Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, that the Treasury was ready to meet the world price of silver.

Congressional silverites were most gratified, but said that it was to be expected under the Silver Purchase Law. Moreover, domestic producers would refuse to sell to the United States Treasury should the latter attempt to maintain a statutory price in face of a higher world price.

Senator Thomas commented that the Secretary's decision was in the interest of a wider use of silver, pointing out that with a view to living up to the provisions of the Silver Purchase Act, the Treasury should meet the world price.

"By literally pursuing this course, we shall make progress. The Treasury's lack of sympathy with the silver programme, heretofore, has been letting the price fall back, but Silverites insist that it move upwards," he added.

Senator Wheeler commented in similar terms.

Although the official bar silver price was 64 1/2 cents, transactions were reported at 64 1/2, 64 3/4, and even at 65 cents. Later, the price fell back to 65 1/2 bid, with between 300,000 and 500,000 ounces reported to have been sold at the above prices.

Later, Mr. Morgenthau announced that the U.S. price for native silver was to be 71 cents an ounce.—United Press.

FURTHER INFLATION?

Washington, April 11.
Effective as from April 19, the new price for domestic silver will be fixed by taking 45 per cent. for seigniorage instead of 50 per cent, thus increasing the price from 64.635 cents to 71.11 cents per ounce.

Apparently, it is indicated that the Administration has confidence that commodity prices will be

SEIGNIORAGE REDUCED

The silver price of 71 cents an ounce was established through the reduction, under Proclamation of the seigniorage as applied to the monetary value of silver $1.2929 an ounce, from 60 per cent. to 45 per cent.

Estimates of the silver to be acquired in order to fulfil the provisions of the Silver Purchase Act are based on the present Gold supplies totalling $8,599,743,000, which require stocks of silver to the value of $2,866,550,000 in order to establish the ratio of 76.25 between Gold and Silver.

The Treasury's silver holdings, at present, total only $915,614,000.—Reuter.

LOCAL DOLLAR RISES

The result of the increase of the silver price in America was to send the Hongkong dollar up to 2s. 0 1/2, this morning, an advance of 3/8ths. The business rate early on was about 2s. 1d., the market being firm.

Shanghai, which is not following silver, remained unchanged at 1s. 5 1/2/16d.

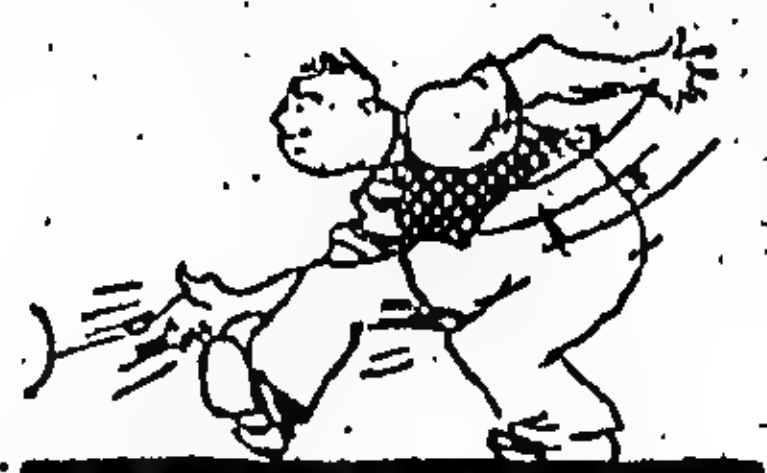

Silver prices advanced 1/8th in London, the advance being due to speculative and Indian buying. China bought and sold on a steady market.

SHAI MARKET REPORT

Shanghai, April 11.
The Foreign Exchange Market is firm due to the rise in London and New York silver.
U.S. dollars are 38, and Sterling 1/6 13/16. Gold Bars are $858.80.
Heavy buying reported by Sassoon's interests eased the foreign exchange market here, after which there was a slight rally on the receipt of the rise in price of American silver which exerted less influence than was generally expected.

In the opinion of many, China is now divorced from the world market.
The exchange equalisation rate is unchanged.
The market was quiet at the close of the morning session. Rates were steady, U.S. dollars at 37 15/16 and Sterling at 1/6 1/4. Gold Bars were $858.40.—United Press.

RECREIO SENIORS' SURPRISE BADMINTON DEFEAT

GLASGOW RANGERS IN THE FINAL

PLAY HAMILTON IN THE SCOTTISH CUP

London, April 10. Glasgow Rangers will meet Hamilton in the Scottish Cup final. To-day the Rangers, replaying their semi-final tie with Hearts, won by two clear goals. When they met a fortnight ago at Hampden Park the teams drew one-all.

Hamilton beat Aberdeen in the semi-final, winning by the odd goal in three.—Reuter.

TO-DAY'S TENNIS DOUBTFUL

DECISION TO BE MADE LATER

SEMI-FINAL OF OPEN DOUBLES

(By "Veritas")

Last night's heavy down-pour did the stand court no good and at the time of writing it has not been decided whether conditions will permit the semi-final in the open doubles being played.

The Kumiham cousins, holders of the title are due to meet Lee Wai-long and Paul Kong, last-minute conquerors of the Tsui brothers.

This ought to be one of the best matches of the tournament, and rather than send the players out to perform under difficult conditions it would be better to postpone the tie until the weather is fair.

If they do play to-day I expect to see the Kumiham cousins win in four sets. It is odds on they will lose the first unless Leo and Kong are attacked with nerves and play below form. The cousins are very slow starters and always need a set in which to work up. Kong and Leo, of course, are quite capable of sending the match the whole distance, but somehow I think four sets will be sufficient.

DRASTIC POLICY BY FULHAM

Manager Dropped

On the authorities of Mr. John Dean, the chairman of Fulham, it is learnt that James Hogan is no longer serving the club in the capacity of manager-coach, a post to which the old Fulham, Swindon and Bolton Wanderers player was appointed last June. Meanwhile, it is significant that the club has made an application to the F.A. for Frank Osborne, their former player, to sit on the board of directors. Rule 37 of the F.A. prohibits a professional, or a professional retained after April 30, 1924, to take part in any form of football management; but that when such a person gives notice in writing that he has ceased to play football the Council have the option to exempt him from the operation of this rule.

LOSE TO SECOND STRING

MIXED DOUBLES

TITLE NOT YET LANDED

(By "Veritas")

Scoring an exceedingly clever win over their seniors on Tuesday, Recreio "B" went a long way towards winning the mixed doubles badminton league. They have to beat the "A" team once more to claim the title.

Weakened by the absence of Eddie Sousa, the Recreio first string found their "Understudies" far too well balanced to be able to make up this handicap. A. M. Silva deputised for Sousa and played with Mrs. Sousa, but apart from a close match with H. Alves and Miss O. Ribeiro they could make no impression.

As a result of their losing all three games, the "B" team won by five games to four, and have now won all ten matches played.

FINE RECOVERY

A. Rodrigues and Miss C. Silva were outstanding for the winners, although it required a wonderful recovery on their part to beat M. Oliveira and Miss M. Basto. The losers enjoyed a long lead at one stage, but their opponents came back very strongly and eventually won by 21-15.

The full scores of this interesting match follow:

A. Rodrigues and Miss C. Silva (Recreio "B") beat J. J. Remedios and Miss M. Silva 21-8; beat M. Oliveira and Miss M. Basto 21-15; beat A. M. Silva and Mrs. C. Sousa 21-7.

L. Carvalho and Miss A. Remedios (Recreio "B") lost to Remedios and Silva 8-21; lost to Oliveira and Basto 7-21; beat Silva and Sousa 21-13.

H. Alves and Miss O. Ribeiro (Recreio "B") lost to Remedios and Silva 19-21; lost to Oliveira and Basto 7-21; beat Silva and Sousa 21-17.

SUNDERLAND MISS GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Defeat Affects Chances For Championship

RESULTS OF HOME FOOTBALL

Sunderland lost a wonderful chance of increasing their challenge to the Arsenal for the league leadership to-day, when they lost to Manchester City by the only goal scored. In consequence of this the Arsenal now lead Sunderland by three points and have a match in hand. A championship-winning position at this end of the season.

Manchester City, who are placed third naturally improved themselves by this win, but with the same number of games played they are still one point behind Sunderland and four points in arrears of the Arsenal.

Derby County, who are also among the leaders, suffered an astonishing defeat, when they entertained Preston and lost by three clear goals.

In the second division, Bolton, who are now almost out of the running for promotion snatched a point at Barnsley, both teams scoring once.

HAMILTON JOLTED

Hamilton, hot challengers to Celtic for second place in the Scottish League met with a severe reverse when they journeyed to St. Johnstone and were beaten by three goals to one. The Saints now come into the picture, being two points behind Hamilton with a game in hand and three points behind Celtic with the same number of matches played.

The full results, as called by Reuter, and the amended league tables follow.

PLAYING LIKE CHAMPIONS

RECREIO WIN AGAIN

LAST EVENING'S FOOTBALL

Kowloon 2 Recreio 8

Kowloon: Cairns; Everest and Eastman, Sinclair, Bliss and Boyd; Willie, Oppenheim, G. White, White and Knox.

Recreio: Marques; A. V. Gosano and Bowen, Silva-Netto, Beltrao and Marques; D'Aquino, Delgado, B. Gosano, Gomes, and Alves.

If the Recreio had not delayed their resuscitation for so long they might to-day be contesting South China "A" for the championship instead of going strong for the runners-up honours.

In this match, as against the Club last week, they indulged in impressive football. They were every bit value for such a decisive win, and if the early exchanges had found the forwards steadier before goal they would have probably reached double figures.

Kowloon were gallant losers, and it says much for them that although strictly on the defensive for practically the whole of the match, they held on to a goal net for the best part of the first half.

THEY JUST HAD TO BE GOOD

Recreio half backs and forwards caught the eye. Beltrao was a splendid pivot and enjoyed having a couple of steady workers on either side of him. Gomes and Alves were brilliant attackers and made things easy for their colleagues. Delgado benefitted by their enterprising approach work, scoring three more or less "gift" goals. Bernie Gosano's skilful distribution of the ball was another feature.

It was only in accordance with the run of the play that the leading lights in the Kowloon team should be the defenders. They had to be good to prevent Kowloon from being completely overrun.

Cairns gave a good account of himself between the sticks, and Eastman again proved that he is a full back and not a forward. His lively defending was one of the chief obstacles to the Recreio forwards.

Bliss was again prominent in his destructive work, but he seems to have lost the art of opening up attacks. Because of this the forwards had rather a hard time, being forced to fetch-and-carry in order to make any progress. Oppenheim revealed promise at right, and G. White was a hard-working leader. But the attack lacked cohesion and Gosano and his colleagues were never extended.

SECOND DIVISION MATCHES

Engineers & South China Win

Although winning by the odd goal in three, the Royal Engineers, this year's Junior Shield finalists, did not impress against the Artillery when they met in a second division match yesterday. However the Sappers rested three of their regular players in view

MACAO V. Y.M.C.A. CANCELLED

Tennis Champion At Sixteen

London. John Bromwich, the sixteen-year-old ambidextrous player, defeated yet another Davis Cup player, when in the semi-final of the South Australian Championships he beat A.K. Quist by 6/4 5/7 7/9 6/3 6/0.

This performance is definitely the best in the youngster's career. The match lasted three hours. Safety first tactics of Quist allowed the patient Bromwich time to make his shots.

Bromwich numbers among his recent victims Enrique Maier and Vernon Kirby, Davis Cup representatives of Spain and South Africa respectively.

Following this victory Bromwich defeated D.P. Turnbull by 6/1 9/11 6/7 6/3 6/2 in the final round.

The match was a gruelling affair, lasting two and a half hours. Fierce heat prevailed throughout.

STILL TO THE FORE

South Wales Borderers At Indian Station

Readers may be interested to hear that the South Wales Borderers who left Hongkong in November of last year with such an enviable sporting record in the Colony, have begun well in their new Station in India by winning the Rawalpindi District Athletic Championships.

It is also interesting to note that amongst the other teams competing at this meeting were the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (who were fifth), and the 3/8 Jat Regiment who were second in the Indian Units Championships. Both of these regiments, it will be remembered, were stationed together with the 24th Regiment in Hongkong in the year 1931-1932.

The 24th Regiment won the High Jump, the Long Jump, the Hurdles and the 100 yards Relay Race—which event was done in the splendid time of 43.2/5 secs. a record for the Punjab.

In the Individual Events, Cpl. Hughes of the Regiment won the Long Jump with a jump of 20ft. 2 1/2 ins. It is worthy of note that Cpl. Hughes won this event for two years in Hongkong.

Two cases of Diphtheria were reported to the local Health authorities on Tuesday.

CORRESPONDENCE

British Newsreels

The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph

Sir,—With reference to recent correspondence regarding requests for British newsreels, we have pleasure in announcing that we have made arrangements to import the Paramount British Newsreels which are produced in England and contain British and Continental news items. These newsreels will be released in the Alhambra and Central Theatres immediately they are received and will be shown with Paramount, Warners and Gaumont pictures instead of holding the newsreels to play with Paramount pictures only. We would appreciate if this extra service could be drawn to the attention of local cinema patrons.

In addition to the above service we have also made arrangements to release in the future, two Paramount American newsreels each week in the Central and Alhambra Theatres. These will also be released promptly on arrival in the Colony.

the East. With Lochridge opening a spade, you would say there isn't much to this hand—the declarer can take two spade tricks, five diamond tricks, three club
tricks, and possibly a heart trick, 11 in all.You certainly wouldn't think it possible to defeat this contract.
Still the hand was defeated by Lochridge's defence. Here's the play as it came up.

The Play

East opened the eight of spades.
West played the ten spots, and the declarer won the trick with the queen. A small diamond was played and the jack finessed, which held. A small heart was returned and the declarer finessed the ten-spot.Just a minute! You were all ready to win the trick with the queen, weren't you? Well, let me show you the play that was made. East won the trick with the ace!Naturally, the declarer now placed the queen in the West hand. East returned a spade and declarer won with the ace.Another diamond was played.
West discarded a heart when the queen was finessed. The declarer then ran his three remaining diamond tricks, discarding a small heart from his own hand. East let go of two small clubs; West discarded two clubs and two hearts.Now, if the declarer cashed his three club tricks and his king of hearts, he would make five odd.
But he thought there was nothing to the hand. West had the queen of hearts, so all he thought he had to do was to take the heart finesse.He played a small heart, finessed
the jack, East won with the queen and returned a spade and

Hongkong, 8th April, 1935.The three no trump contract was set one trick. A beautiful false card play.

Today's Contract Problem

North has the contract at four spades. East opens the king of hearts. With this opening, it looks as if the defense could make two hearts—a diamond, and a club. Or perhaps you would want to make a different opening.
In any case, regardless of the opening, the hand can be made. Lay the cards out. It is an interesting hand.

AMBULANCE WORK

ALLEGATIONS OF INTERFERENCE

Allegations that he and others had interfered with the vaccination work of the St. John Ambulance Brigade were made against Yu Chi at Central Magistracy this morning when he was charged before Mr. Macfadyen with assaulting Yeung Sai, 18, a member of the Brigade.

Inspector Smith told the Court that the complainant and others were engaged in free vaccination work at the junction of Hollywood Road and Aberdeen Street. Later they had been interfered with by a number of people and complainant had to close his stall because of the defendant and others.

Inspector Smith said the police would like an adjournment of the case in order to make further inquiries. He asked for a remand of 48 hours.

This was granted.

NAVAL OFFICER IN MISHAP

CAR OVERTURNS ON BANK

Lt. J. R. Garnett, R.N., was the victim of a motor mishap in Stubbs Road yesterday, when, in attempting to avoid a collision with a lorry, his car skidded, mounted a bank and overturned. He was thrown out of the car but was fortunate enough to escape with minor injuries.

The mishap occurred about 11.30 a.m. Lt. Garnett, driving car No. 1738, in Wanching Gap, had reached a point just above the bend in Stubbs Road, when he saw a lorry appearing from the opposite direction. To avoid a collision, Lt. Garnett sharply applied his brakes. The car skidded and, swerving to one side, mounted a bank and overturned.

Lt. Garnett received a cut over the eye and abrasions to his knees, and later went to the Royal Naval Hospital for treatment.

STRANDED SHIP HOPE OF REFLOATING TO-MORROW

With the assistance of the Talkoo tug, it is expected that the steamer Ouchao, a Chinese-owned steamer flying the Portuguese flag, will be refloated to-morrow and brought back to the Colony.

According to information obtained from the owners, the Tai Fung steamship Co., the Ouchao encountered thick fog on Monday evening while proceeding along the coast near Tai Nian Shan not far from Cheung Chau Island. After striking a rock it was discovered that the ship had been holed near the bow, and the steamer was subsequently beached.

In response to the steamer's signal for assistance, a number of fishing junks went to the rescue but they were unable to do much in the complete darkness. The Portuguese officers and Chinese members of the crew remained on board for the night, it being seen that the steamer was in no immediate danger of sinking. Early next morning, the commander, Mr. Ng Fook-kee, and his assistant boarded a fishing junk to go to Macao, where they reported the incident to the harbour authorities.

The cargo is estimated to be worth about $20,000. Serious water damage has been done to 1,200 cases of matches, a few hundred sacks of sugar and about a hundred cases of sundries.

CAMPBELL STILL HOPEFUL

NEW SPEED EFFORT THIS YEAR

London, April 10. Speaking of his aim to achieve a land speed of 300 miles per hour, at a luncheon to-day the racing motorist, Sir Malcolm Campbell, said he proposed to have another attempt before the year was out, and sincerely hoped that the Bluebird would reach that goal.—British Wireless.

SNATCHER SENT TO GAOL

PORTUGUESE STUDENT COMMENDED

Convicted of stealing a handbag from Mrs. S. E. Green, of 27 Jordan Road, an unemployed man, Mui Lok, was sentenced to four months' hard labour and twelve strokes of the birch (if unfit, two months extra) by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Police Court this morning.

F. H. Silva, a student of La Salle College, was congratulated by the Magistrate on a plucky effort in effecting the arrest of the thief. Silva was assisted by H. Ribeiro, a clerk of the Hongkong Electric Co., and another friend.

Detective-Sergeant E. Franklin, prosecuting, stated that about 7.15 last night Mrs. Green was returning home and had barely got to her doorway when the defendant came up from behind and snatched her black leather bag from under her left arm. The culprit ran down Parkes Street, chased by Mrs. Green and Chan Po, a policeman of the Water Police Station, and was finally caught by the three Portuguese gentlemen. Mrs. Green recovered her bag from the pavement at the corner of Jordan Road and Parkes Street. The defendant was observed to drop the bag by the seaman, in the course of the chase.

Silva testified that defendant ran very fast down Parkes Street. Witnesses gave chase, tripped him up and two friends, one of whom was Ribeiro, came up and seized the man.

Defendant denied that he was running very fast, and claimed it was a case of mistaken identity.
